Red Victory Will Cost Aid, Italy Warned By Marshall

Hostile Party's Triumph Would Indicate Help Isn't Wanted, He Says

Berkeley, Calif., March 19 (U.P.).—Secretary of State George C. Marshall today served warning on Italy that it would forfeit benefits of the European Recovery Program if it voted Communist next month.

Addressing Charter Day ceremonies befort the Nation's largest institution of higher learning, Marshall said the "present situation" in world affairs is "disturbingly similar" to the years of World War II in which he served as Army Chief of Staff.

"Never before in history has the world situation been more threatening to our ideals and interests than at the present time," Marshall told students, faculty and visitors at the University of California, where he was awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree.

Recalls Harvard Proposal

In an address which recalled his original proposal for the European Recovery Program last year at Harvard University, Marshall stated flatly that "such concerted actions" as the newly signed alliance of Great Britain, France and the Benelux countries "demand our cooperation and assistance."

Marshall renewed earlier pleas by himself and President Truman for prompt enactment of the ERP. He also reminded his audience that the president had called for enactment of a universal military training program and reinstitution of the draft.

The Secretary of State, who arrived here last night in President Truman's personal plane, the "Sacred Cow," took issue with statements by the Italian Communist Party regarding U. S. policy in the Italian elections.

Denies Communist Claim

The communists in Italy, Marshall declared, had "publicly asserted that if their party . . . is victorious at the polls American assistance to Italy will continue without change."

In reply, Marshall stated that the association of 16 nations in the ERP "is entirely voluntary, the people of any nation have a right to change their mind and, in effect, withdraw."

"If they choose to vote into power a government in which the dominant political force would be a party whose hostility to this program has been frequently, publicly and emphatically proclaimed, this could only be considered as evidence of the desire of that country to dissociate itself from the program," he said.

[This would seem to rule out not only a government with Communists openly in key posts, but also a government of nominally nonparty ministers under Communist control.—Editor's Note.]

One Conclusion to Be Drawn

"This Government would have to conclude that Italy had removed itself from the benefits of the European Recovery Program."

Marshall said that "there has been no compulsion of pressure of any sort in regard to association in this great cooperative effort."

On the other hand, he declared, "every European nation under the influence of the Communists has been prevented from participation" in the ERP.

"Some," he charged, "have been deprived of the right to participate, clearly against their own wishes."

Marshall said that the speed with which Communist parties took control in Czechoslovakia, Hungary and elsewhere, "demonstrates the initial advantage of dictators in dealing with democracies such as ours."

He accused a "small group of men, possibly a dozen," with master minding Communist coups throughout Europe.

This group, he asserted, "quick-

Debate Opens Tuesday

House Group Votes 6.2 Billion For 'One-Package' Foreign Aid

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

The House Foreign Affairs Committee approved a $6,205,000,000 foreign aid bill yesterday, combining help to China, Greece, Turkey and the U. N. Children's Fund with the European Recovery Program.

Final Committee action came after two months of hearings and a week of sometimes stormy day and night sessions behind closed doors. The bill now goes to the House for final debate starting Tuesday, with a new promise from Speaker Martin yesterday that it would be passed before April 1.

Democratic members fought almost to the last to report the European recovery portion separately, but they lost by a straight party vote of 14 to 8. In the end the weary and often quarrelsome committee patched up its differences and voted unanimously for the combined measure.

The bill will go to the House floor in four sections, or "titles," as follows:

THE FIRST, $5,300,000,000 for the European Recovery Program and 20 million in relief for Trieste;

THE SECOND, 60 million for the International Children's Fund of the United Nations, to be made available gradually as other member natons put up their shares;

THE THIRD, 275 million in military aid to Greece and Turkey, and 150 million in military aid to China; and

THE FOURTH, 420 million in economic aid to China, to be administered by the same new agency which will handle ERP.

In its shape and substance the House bill differed sharply from Senate ideas, and was almost sure to run into conflict in the conference stage. The Senate insisted on handling ERP separately; its Foreign Relations Committee yesterday unanimously approved a separate bill authorizing 275 million dollars in military help to Greece and Turkey.

This morning the Senate committee will work on still another separate bill, for economic help to China. As for the Children's Fund, the military help to China, it was anybody's guess yesterday whether the Senate committee would approve them at all.

Until yesterday the House committee had followed the Senate's European recovery bill fairly closely, but yesterday morning it

U. S. Detains French Labor Leader Briefly

Saillant Held in N. Y. On Way to Mexico; Mme. Joliot-Curie Freed

New York, March 19 (U.P.).—Mrs. Irene Joliot-Curie, Nobel prize winner and daughter of the discoverers of radium, was released from Ellis Island today on the order of Attorney General Tom Clark. She had been held overnight by immigration authorities without explanation.

Soon afterward immigration officials detained Louis Saillant, secretary general of the World Federation of Trade Unions, when he arrived from France today.

The 37-year-old former French delegate to the United Nations Economic and Social Council was held for more than an hour. He was en route to a labor meeting in Mexico City.

Saillant said he would protest his detention to the French Ambassador and to United Nations Secretary General Trygve Lie.

"This is unbelievable," the angry Frenchman exclaimed when he finally was cleared by immigration authorities. "If I had my own plane I'd leave this minute."

At a press conference in the offices of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee, which sponsored her trip to America, Mrs. Joliot-Curie, the wife of the nuclear physicist Frederic Joliot-Curie, said the United States evidently had "a little iron curtain of its own." She added that "help to anti-Fascist forces is not looked upon with as much favor as help to some Nazis."

Commenting on her detention, she said: "It was not too much of a surprise."

"We have examples of American scientists who have been refused permission to attend scientific conferences abroad," she said. "The United States has a little iron curtain of its own.

"The difficulties of Dr. Condon are another reason why I was not too surprised at my own detention."

She cited a nuclear fission conference in London last summer at which, she said, no American scientist was present. Dr. Condon is Dr. Edward U. Condon, leading American atomic physicist and head of the Bureau of Standards, who was accused by a subcommittee of the House Committee on Un-American Activities of being "one of the weakest links in the Nation's atomic security."

"Wave of Reaction" Blamed

The "wave of reaction" also had a part in her detention, Mrs. Joliot-Curie added. "The first wave" caused World War II, she said, "and the second wave is now very prevalent."

Tax on Goods From Outside D. C. Protested

Cain Answers Appeal With Call for Meeting To Study Inequities

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Business groups with strong congressional backing appealed at the Capitol yesterday for relief from a District tax. City officials estimated granting the, request would cut District revenue at least a million dollars a year.

The appeal got a quick answer. Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) called on District officials to confer with representatives of the business groups and with Capitol legal advisers to work out legislation that would correct inequities.

Main request of the business groups was for passage of a bill, sponsored by Representatives Howard W. Smith (R., Va.) and J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.) that would take off the tax they were protesting.

Target of their protest was application of a 5 per cent franchise tax to net business income which is derived from sales to District purchases but where the actual transfer of ownership takes place outside the District. The bill would take the tax off such business.

Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West sad the tax worked that way from 1939 to 1942, was removed by Congress and stayed off until last year's revenue bill restored it. He explained the main purpose is to tax business income derived from sources within the Distrct.

Representative Smith asked Assistant Corporation Counsel George C. Updegraff "if I order a bcycle sent to Washington from Philadelphia and pay for it COD that's taxable under this law, and if Senator Cain orders a bicycle and pays for it by check, that is not taxable?"

"That's essentially correct," said Updegraff.

Smith raised a question about District food brokers, and said he'd been told that "the food people say they'll sell their food somewhere else if this tax stays on."

Washington businessmen joined outside groups in support of the bills. Among those who testified were M. L. Nee of the P. J. Nee Furniture Co. here; Barry Black, president of A. R. McChesney Co. Inc., Washington food brokerage firm; John E. Skilling, an attorney for the Washington Food Brokers Association; J. T. Ryan of High Point, N. C., executive vice president of the Southern Furniture Manufacturers Association; R. L. Jenkins, florist of Suitland, Md.; Howard P. Castle of the National Canners Association, and J. C. McCarthy, secretary of the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers.

45 Killed In Midwest Tornadoes

Two Illinois Towns Nearly Wiped Out; Big Ohio Cities Hit; Damage in Millions

Chicago, March 19 (AP).—Tornadoes and high winds hit spots from Texas to New York today and last night, killing at least 45 persons and injuring more than 300.

Estimates of property damage ran to several millions of dollars.

Hardest hit area was southern Macoupin County, Ill., northeast of St. Louis, Mo.

State police reported 36 deaths in that area and a swath of flattened homes from a twister which swept four communities. Four of the dead were in Ohio and two in Missouri.

The storm began in Texas last night.

100-Mile Wind

Rushing across Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri and Illinois, the disturbance built up wind speeds which reached 100 miles an hour at Kokomo, Ind., and 95 miles an hour at the Indianapolis airport where the cups were blown off a whirling wind speed indicator. Bracken County, Ky., got the edge of the high winds.

The swirling twister, which formed near Alton, Ill., hit Fosterburg, a community of 100 homes, wrecking or damaging virtually every building there and killing 13 persons. Bunker Hill, a town of 1500, was hit next. Here, 14 died and 80 per cent of the town was leveled, with damage estimated at $500,000. Four were killed and a number of homes destroyed in little Woodburn.

The tornado then bore down on Gillespie, a town of 2500 population, sounding "like a string of boxcars rolling down the track," one resident said. Five persons were killed and damage was heavy here.

Damage also was caused in the communities of Litchfield, Freeburg, New Athens, Woodburn and Alton. At least 80 injured were treated at Alton.

Drenching rains accompanied the storms in Illinois, causing floods that isolated at least one community and disrupted rail and highway travel. High winds blew down power lines.

2 Die in Church School

Three of the known dead were in Ohio, where damage was estimated in excess of a million dollars. An undetermined number were injured in that State. Two children died when a tornado demolished St. John's Catholic Church at Landeck, Mercer County, and the steeple fell on a parochial school. Four were hurt when the tornado wrecked a building at Bowling Green. A number of school children were feared injured when part of a slate roof was ripped from a school building at Benton Ridge, Ohio.

Five school children were injured when the roof of the Campbell School in Sandusky, Ohio, caved in and 35 pupils were trapped. The destructive winds lashed more than a half dozen western Ohio communities. At Lima, the storm hit the heart of the business district. Stores were damaged and a night club unroofed.

The storms hit Ohio about 1 p. m. Other Ohio communities reporting damage were Cleveland, Cincinnati, Delphos, Van Wert, Rockford, Ohio City, Celina, St. Henry, Norwalk, Findlay, Fremont, Newark, Bellevue, Tiffin, Columbus, Springfield, Washington Court House, Urbana, Mansifield, and Mt. Vernon.

School buildings at Rising Sun and Leo were damaged by the gale winds that pounded Indiana. Eight pupils and a teacher were injured when a roof was blown from a school at Leo, several students were injured as the wind peeled off the roof of the Rising Sun school. None was reported seriously hurt. Crawfordsville and Kokomo were the hardest hit cities.

U. S. Backs Down on Partition On Truman's Direct Order; Palestine Fears Stepup in War

British Strengthen Patrols as Arabs, Jews Plan Public Jubilee, Lament

Jerusalem, March 19 (U.P.).—British military authorities urgently strengthened patrols late tonight as both Arabs and Jews feared the United States proposal to abandon partition would increase Holy Land bloodshed.

News of the proposal reached here at a moment when Arab-Jewish warfare was spreading.

Official and unofficial reports put the death toll at 49 Arabs, Jews and Britons in 48 hours. Details of new clashes continued to pour into Jerusalem.

Jubilant Arabs were expected to demonstrate tomorrow and Jews predicted that, despite the sabbath, members of the Jewish extremist Irgun Zvai Leumi and Stern gangs might hold counter-demonstrations.

See "America Awakened"

An Arab source said:

"At last America has awakened and understood that it was playing with fire."

A Jewish source said:

"If this is true it deals Zionism its biggest blow since Britain delivered its last knockout punch."

Both sides said abandonment of partition would not spare the all-out bloodshed. Things are too far advanced now, they said, on the road to an Arab-Jewish war.

Unofficial reports said enraged members of the Haganah organization, striking in retaliation for the massacre of 10 Haganahites at Hartov yesterday, killed an equal number of Arabs on the Haifa-Acre road.

Austin Announces Surprise Reversal; Calls on U. N. to Set Up Trusteeship

Lake Success, March 19 (AP). The United States urged the United Nations today to abandon the Palestine partition project.

The United States called instead for a United Nations trusteeship as soon as possible to prevent chaos in the Holy Land.

It was understood here the move was made on direct orders from President Truman and his Cabinet.

It was a back-down from the American position on the partition plan which was put through the 1947 U. N. Assembly under joint American-Russian leadership last November 29.

The United States also asked the U. N. Security Council to recommend a special session of the U. N. Assembly to set up the trusteeship. It hopes for this session early in April.

A high U. N. administrative official declared "this means the end of partition."

Jewish Agency "Amazed"

The United States proposed that the Security Council instruct the U. N. Palestine Partition Commission to stop trying to carry out the partition plan. A small advance party of the commission already is in Palestine.

The Jewish Agency for Palestine attacked the surprise shift in United States policy as an "amazing reversal." The agency said the Jews of Palestine would resist trusteeship by force.

In London a high British source said the United States move might change Britain's determination to get out of Palestine finally by August 1.

Many members of Congress in Washington protested. Only a few indorsed the new plan.

The Security Council adjourned its Palestine debate at 6:02 p. m. until next Wednesday, at 10:30 a. m. without action on the American proposals. The Council must decide whether it wants to call for a special session.

Austin Heard in Silence

The American plan was disclosed to the Security Council by Warren R. Austin, chief American delegate to the U. N.

Austin's speech was received in silence by the Council and by the public, which occupied about three-fourths of the Council chamber.

Austin first tipped his hand at a secret meeting of the five big powers in the offices of U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie. He gave the other powers a general outline of his proposals.

Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister who has been demanding the U. N. carry out partition, said the United States proposals were a "striking contradiction" to the Assembly plan. He said he would have to ask Moscow for instructions.

Sir Alexander Cadogan of Britain, whose government has served notice it would end the Palestine Mandate by May 15 and withdraw completely by August 1, said he too would have to ask for orders.

French Incline to Idea

Alexandre Parodi of France, whose vote for partition in the Assembly last November 29 was greeted by cheers from the audience, said he believed his government would accept the new American proposals.

Dr. T. F. Tsiang of China, this month's president of the Council, said he believed China, too, would agree with the United States. China has abstained on all important votes in the U. N. on the Palestine issue.

Austin told the Council there seems to be general agreement that the 1947 Assembly's program to divide Palestine into Jewish and Arab countries by next October 1, and tie them together in an economic union, could not be carried out by peaceful means.

He said it is clear also that the Security Council is not prepared to go ahead with efforts to carry out the project in the existing situation. He contended that chaos and heavy fighting will result when the British terminate the mandate.

"The United Nations cannot permit such a result," Austin said. "The loss of life in the Holy Land must be brought to an immediate end. The maintenance of international peace is at stake."

Night Watchman Foils Burglary Despite Beating

A night watchman, beaten over the head with a bottle, still thwarted burglary of the Watkins Whitney Paint Co., 1432 P st. nw., early yesterday.

The watchman, James Edward Graham, 32 of 3120 Warder st. nw., pulled his revolver after being felled by two men at the paint company door and fired one shot. He told police he believed one of the men was struck.

He said they struck him with a bottle, ordered him to open the door and then demanded the combination of the safe—which he did not have. As he lay on the floor of the store, they kicked him and fled as he pulled his revolver.

Graham was treated at Emergency Hospital and later moved to the Bethesda Naval Hospital with cuts on the head and face and a possible jaw fracture.

Girl Reported Kidnaped Found In Nearby Cottage

Concord, Vt., March 19 (AP).—Charles O'Brien, father of an allegedly kidnaped 16-year-old girl, said today that for five nights she was a "terribly frightened" prisoner of a former convict who tied her to a bed in a summer cottage "only two doors away from our house."

O'Brien said his daughter, Charlotte, was "O. K." and that her alleged kidnaper, Kenneth A. Ingalls, 34, did not attack her.

"She was held against her will," O'Brien said.

Ingalls was captured with the girl early today only three miles from her home after O'Brien found notes in a fuse box in his barn telling where to leave food.

Married Men Exempt Under Planned Draft

Forrestal to Present Blueprint for Bill To Senate Next Week

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Married men would be deferred and National Guardsmen and Reservists exempted under a stopgap draft bill being whipped into final shape at the Pentagon.

The proposed legislation, officials said, will be presented to the Senate Armed Services Committee by Defense Secretary James Forrestal early next week. Forrestal and Secretary of State George C. Marshall will appear before the group then for a fuller explanation of the need for the measure.

Chairman Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) announced the committee's decision to recall the two Cabinet members following an executive session policy meeting yesterday. He said members wanted them to elaborate on this week's open session testimony behind closed doors.

Background Wanted

Several Senators said they were not satisfied with the evidence given publicly by President Truman, Marshall and Forrestal in support of the new preparedness program. Their plan calls for universal military training, a temporary draft, substantial expansion of the Army and increases for the other services.

One committeeman said he wanted to know what secret information the Administration had which made the international situation so much worse today than earlier.

Officials said the draft of new selective service legislation being written at the Pentagon will propose the order of call, age limits and other essentials. Both the Senate and House Armed Forces Committees will write their own legislation, but undoubtedly will

U. S. Change On Palestine Laid to Crisis

World Situation Said To Make Too Heavy Demand on Forces

Lake Success, N. Y., March 19 (U.P.).—"The world situation" was cited by a high qualified source tonight as the reason for the United States abandonment of Palestine partition.

This source, who cannot be identified, said that "in view of the present world situation, the United States does not have the military force to implement partition."

The world situation is such that the United States has better use for forces in other places, he said.

Veto Won't Stop Plan

His words can be vouched for as an expression of the position of the top American officials responsible for the reversal of the American position today in the U. N. Security Council.

The source did not name the "other places" where American troops are needed, but he made clear he was talking about the state of affairs between Russia and the western world.

If Russia does not like the new American proposals and uses the veto in the Security Council, the source pointed out, the United States could go directly to the General Assembly where the veto does not apply.

The decision to go back on the American-inspired partition decision was made "on the highest authority," the source said. This doubtless meant President Truman.

Discussed With Britain

The new American policy was hammered out only after detailed talks with British and French authorities, it was made known here. Some thought this meant London would support the American proposals and perhaps even stay in Palestine longer than May 15 if necessary.

Bail Denied Assault Suspect; Girl's Condition Still 'Critical'

An illiterate, part-time laborer was charged yesterday with the rape of a 9-year-old girl, who was found beaten and unconscious late Thursday in the deserted woods surrounding the National Arboretum.

Holmes

The laborer, Theodore Martin Holmes, 20, of 1723 7th st. nw., was arrested within six hours of the finding of the schoolgirl who lives near the Arboretum. Police said he orally confessed beating and attempting to rape the girl, but refused to sign a written statement.

The white girl, an only child, is still in critical condition at Gallinger Hospital, suffering from a brain concussion, numerous other head injuries, a broken left leg, multiple lacerations and contusions of the body. Hospital officials said an internal examination showed evidence of force in the commission of rape. She was conscious momentarily in the morning, but lapsed into unconsciousness after confirming Holmes' description as fitting her assailant.

Holmes, a Negro, was arrested in his room located in the rear of the Rogers Transfer Co., which employed him from time to time as the need arose, about 1 a. m. At 6 a. m., he was put through a police lineup at headquarters and

Sparkman Calls on Truman To Quit Race and Save Party

Senator Sparkman (D., Ala.) called on President Truman last night to withdraw as a candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

Sparkman, who headed the party's speakers' bureau in the 1946 campaign, told a reporter he is convinced that the Democratic Party will be "cut to ribbons" in the November election unless Mr. Truman bows out.

An opponent of Mr. Truman's civil rights program, Sparkman had announced for reelection to the Senate as a supporter of the President.

But he said Mr. Truman's "colossal blunder" in proposing that Congress enact anti-Jim Crow, anti-lynching, anti-job discrimination and anti-poll tax laws had forced him to change his mind.

"I have at long last reached the conclusion that there is only one way that this controversy can be settled and only one way to avoid defeat for the Democratic Party in November—that is for Mr. Truman to withdraw," the Alabama Senator said.

Sparkman's statement followed action of 21 of 28 candidates for Alabama presidential electors in signing a pledge not to support Mr. Truman in the Electoral College.

It is his belief, Sparkman said, that the 11 finally chosen from this field will go solidly for some candidate other than the President.

Sparkman said he had believed previously that the civil rights

U. S. Plan to Shelve Partition Attacked

Costa Rica Troops Hurt U. S. Writer

San Jose, Costa Rica, March 19 (AP).—Jules Dubois, correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, was pummeled and arrested by Costa Rican troops today and detained by government authorities for 70 minutes.

Only yesterday Dubois was released from five days of house arrest by Gen. Rene Picado Michalski, Minister of Public Order.

Dubois attempted to photograph troops sacking a butcher shop. Six Mariachis (rural troops) attacked him, striking him with their rifle butts, and they smashed his camera.

Dubois was taken to the presidential palace.

"While I was at the Presidencia I saw Communist troops," Dubois said.

Earlier, in a news conference, Gen. Picado said military operations "are progressing satisfactorily for the government forces" in Costa Rica's revolution.

Dubois asked him:

"Do you know, general, that the opposition has enough strength to whip the pants off the government?"

The minister shook his head slowly and sadly, but did not answer.

Administration's Palestine Ideas Bring Protests

By The Associated Press

The American proposal to shelve the partitioning of Palestine brought immediate protest from many members of Congress last night.

Only a few indorsed the Administration's plan to set up a United Nations' trusteeship for the Holy Land instead.

The White House said there would be no immediate comment on the change of plans.

Taft Gives Views

Senator Taft (R., Ohio), a GOP presidential aspirant, said he thinks this country should have stood firm in its support of partitioning. "If the new plan is accepted, the Security Council will have to send an armed force to Palestine to support the U. N. trusteeship," Taft said, adding:

"All of the objection raised by the Administration to the use of armed force when it was to enforce partitioning will apply just as strongly to this plan." Representative Klein (D., N. Y.) called the decision "the most terrible sell-out of the common people since Munich."

Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) said it was "unbelievable" that the United States should back down on partition. "The Administration can't seem to get a policy and stand by it," he declared.

Shock and Surprise

The Senate's assistant Democratic leader, Senator Lucas of Illinois, said: "This is a shock and a surprise."

However, Chairman Gurney (R., S. Dak.) of the Senate Armed Service Committee said:

"I approve of the action. It relieves me no end."

Senator Elbert Thomas (D., Uah) said "this is what we should have done in the first place."

Other comment: Representative Javits (R., N. Y.): "By this action the United States takes the first step to abandon he United Nations as a working instrument for world peace . . . If the United States has to walk downhill because of the threats and illegal resistance of a few weak Arab states and ask the U. N. to follow, it is a tragic spectacle."

Senator Ives (R., N. Y.): "Most unfortunate."

U. S. Reverses On Palestine

since the U. N. Assembly approved partition last November 29.

Austin said the United States agrees fully with the other big powers that the Security Council must act to stop the violence and restore peace in Palestine.

"In addition," Austin said, "my government believes that a temporary trusteeship for Palestine should be established under the Trusteeship Council of the United Nations to maintain the peace and to afford the Jews and Arabs of Palestine further opportunity to reach an agreement regarding the future government of that country.

"Such a United Nations trusteeship would, of course, be without prejudice to the character of the eventual political settlement, which we hope can be achieved without long delay. In our opinion the Security Council should recommend the establishment of such a trusteeship to the General Assembly and to the mandatory power (Britain). This would require an immediate special session of the General Assembly, which the Security Council might call under the terms of the charter.

"Pending the special session, we believe the Security Council should instruct the Palestine Commission to suspend its efforts to implement the proposed partition plan."

A special assembly session last May set up an 11-nation Palestine Investigating Commission (UNSCOP) which turned in a majority report recommending partition of the country into Arab and Jewish nations.

The United States and Russia teamed up early in the regular Assembly in support of partition and it finally was approved by a vote of 33 to 13 on November 29.

After the American announcement today Arab delegates smiled but made no immediate comment.

Jewish Agency 'Amazed'

The Jewish Agency for Palestine attacked Austin's statement as an "amazing reversal" of United States policy.

Dr. Abba Hillel Silver of Cleveland, chairman of the American section of the Jewish Agency executive, told the Council the Assembly's partition plan remains valid for the Jewish people.

Dr. Silver, sitting at the council table by invitation, said the Jews of Palestine would do everything for national survival if the U. N. cannot carry out partition.

Dr. Silver said that up to the last few days the United States maintained that its position on partition remained unaltered.

"We are at an utter loss to understand the reason for this amazing reversal which will bring confusion, is likely to lead to increased violence in Palestine and will incalculably hurt the prestige and authority of the United Nations for whose effectiveness the President of the United States pleaded again as recently as Wednesday last," Dr. Silver said.

In the meeting in Lie's office, Lie reminded Austin that UNSCOP last summer discussed trusteeship but it was not pressed since UNSCOP decided both the Jews and Arabs would fight it.

As secretary general, Lie said, he felt he had to ask whether the big powers, if they accept the American proposals, are prepared to accept the responsibility for trusteeship and see that it is carried through.

Austin replied:

"I can answer that question. The United States is ready, of course, to back up a United Nations decision."

U. S. Change Laid to Crisis

the United States wanted the U. N. itself to be the Holy Land's caretaker.

This would require the U. N. as trustee to raise funds—from its member governments—and to hire soldiers and policemen to maintain order.

The government would be appointed by the U. N. and supervised by the U. N. trusteeship council, which has been boycotted by Russia on grounds it is illegally constituted.

ATTACK THREATENED—Arrows indicate where three Soviet-backed "International Brigade" divisions were reported in official dispatches from Athens to be poised for a threatened attack across the Greek border. Strongest of the forces is believed in Yugoslavia while others are said to be in Albania and Bulgaria. Members of Guerilla Chieftain Markos Vafiades' self-proclaimed Greek Communist government are believed congregated on Greek soil near Lake Presba (A), where two air strips were recently repaired. An attack is believed likely from Albania and directed toward Ionnina (B). A Greek government spokesman said it has been learned that guerillas planned, between March 22 and 30, to attack Salonika (C), major port 40 miles south of the Yugoslav frontier

Marshall Warns Italy on Vote

ly and conclusively determines the action to be taken on a large scale throughout Europe, and everything is coordinated with that decision—the absolute control of the press, the domination of the people, the conduct of the skillful campaign of propaganda, the complete misrepresentation of the attitude and purposes of any country opposed to the procedure—all is arbitrarily decided upon.

"Our decisions, our actions in regard to these developments are of great importance. We have an acknowledged position of leadership in the world . . . the character and strength of our leadership may well be decisive in the present situation.

Sees Peril In Secondary Role

"We cannot evade the issue by negative procedure of inaction. By so doing we would vacate our dominant position of leadership and thereby revert to a secondary role—a role which inevitably would deprive each of us of those American principles of freedom and justice we have always upheld by every means available.

"It should now be perfectly clear that rule based on threats and force instead of on reason and justice must not be allowed to spread further unchecked."

Marshall put chief emphasis on Europe but said that "critical situations" exist in the Near East, Indonesia and China and that the United States "cannot ignore Latin America or our direct responsibilities in Japan and Korea."

He singled out the "bold and truculent" Communist coup in Czechoslovakia, the earlier Communist move in Hungary and last December's "directed and fomented" strike in France and Italy.

Cites "General Strategy"

Then, speaking frankly in terms of "general strategy," Marshall recalled the period between 1941 and 1945 when he was Chief of Staff and had to decide between concentration of allied forces in Europe or limited warfare on worldwide fronts. He said:

"I find myself in virtually the same position today as I was during those war years and the decisions are just as difficult and equally important. Rich and powerful as we are, we cannot afford to disperse our efforts to a degree which would render all ineffective.

"Every region has its claims and its proponents and it is therefore necessary to decide on a general strategy to be employed, having in mind the entire world situation."

A "depressing aspect" of the European situation, Marshall said, "is the duplication in Europe of the high-handed and calculated procedure of the Nazi regime."

"The organization of the satellite states—under the communistic doctrine and the methods of the police state formula—was carried out rather quietly.

"The takeover of Hungary was a bolder exhibition of the same technique—the Czechoslovakia incident, however, was both bold and truculent in procedure, quite evidently staged to impress the people of Finland and the remainder of the free states of western Europe."

"The procedure is in accordance with the frank declaration of the Soviet government and Communist Parties to oppose in every way possible the development of the European Recovery Program."

Pravda Says U. S. Runs Spy School At Oberammergau

Moscow, March 19 (AP).—Yuri Korolov, Berlin correspondent of Pravda, official Communist newspaper, said in a dispatch today the United States is operating a spy-training school at Oberammergau, Germany.

He said the school was run for eastern European diversionists, spies and provocateurs. The students are being taught espionage methods, he said, in preparation for returning to eastern European countries.

American Secret Service men, along with "German Fascist generals and other criminals" are training the students, Korolov said.

London Fears Blowup Soon In 3 Nations

London, March 19 (AP).—Western European diplomats braced themselves today for bad news from anyone of three potential trouble spots in the Mediterranean—Greece, Turkey and Italy.

Two Turkish military attaches returned home from Bulgaria suddenly and without public explanation. Hungary was reported to have ordered three of its diplomatic staff home from Turkey. Diplomats here speculated whether the two-way shift had anything to do with stiffening relations between Turkey and Russia's Balkan neighbors and the standing Soviet demands for Turkish border changes and a big hand in the Dardanelles and Aegeon.

Constantine Rentis, Greek minister of public order, supported United States State Department reports that an international brigade of several thousand men is stationed on Greece's northern border. Rentis said in Athens that the Greek government had received reports Communist guerillas planned an attack on Salonika between March 22 and 30. The Greek Foreign Ministry said it had reports of considerable military movements in Yugoslavia and Albania.

30,000 Across Border

United States State Department dispatches had said there were reports of 30,000 men in an international brigade in Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria. These reports suggested that any attack across the border might have the purpose of capturing Ioannina for a Communist Greek capital or of throwing a projected government spring offensive off balance.

Senior Greek and American army officers at Athens mapped plans for stepped-up Greek operations. The Greek government ordered evacuation of all children from northern Greece.

Tempers shortened in Italy where political campaigners took full advantage of a holiday to plead for the voters' support in the critical Communist versus anti-Communist elections April 18. Riot squads were called out at a huge leftist rally in Rome, but fist-fighting was broken up without any casualties.

[One person was killed tonight, a policeman suffered a gunshot wound and 10 other persons were injured when Communists attacked a Christian Socialist election parade near Castellammare, Naples police told the United Press.]

High-ranking British officials in London were reported gravely concerned lest a Communist "blunder" in one of these three places or elsewhere might result in a minority uprising or intervention which would grow into real trouble.

Members of the new western European alliance of Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg wondered whether their new union would be built strong enough soon enough to save some of Europe's western nations from the fate of Czechoslovakia.

They pondered whether Russia will heed the warning in President Truman's words and slow up their expansion program, or gamble on winning further positions before the Marshall Plan and revived American military strength can become fully effective.

Dutch Foreign Minister Baron van Boetzelaer told the parliament at The Hague today the new Brussels alliance at its next conference would take up "their common fight against those forces which have been called here the new fifth column."

He did not mention communism by name. The chamber passed a resolution to exclude Communists from membership in the foreign affairs committee.

French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault and Italian Foreign Minister Carlo Sforza prepared to meet at Turin tomorrow to sign an agreement to enter a new customs union. Press reports said they also would sign a trade agreement.

Norway Halts All Army Recruit Discharges

Oslo, Norway, March 19 (U.P.).—Norwegian army recruits due for discharge are to be kept with the colors, and more men may be called up, the government announced today.

The decision was approved on recommendation of the defense ministry within a few hours after the premiers of Norway, Sweden, and Denmark determined at a meeting in Stockholm to show a firm front against Communist expansion.

Recruits affected are those due to be dismissed from the army at the end of their regular nine-month training period. They will be kept in the service for a period "up to three months," it was announced.

May Recall Others

In addition, it was announced, the government reserves the right to call up for training and service officers and men, especially technical personnel, who have completed their regular peacetime services and have been discharged.

Call-ups of such men will be carried out on a "limited" scale on recommendation of the War Ministry, the government said.

Scandinavian labor unions stepped up their fight to break the grip the Communists obtained on their organizations in the postwar period.

The Gothenburg Metal Workers Union, second largest in Sweden, elected four Social Democrats to their executive committee yesterday, and thus obtained a majority of the seven-man body. The remaining three are Communists. Previously the leftists had a majority.

In Stockholm 127 leading Swedish authors, including almost every prominent writer in the country, signed a resolution protesting against Communist violation of freedom to write. They urged all writers in the world to take up the fight against "the new barbarianism."

Professors and teachers at Stockholm and Upsala Universities in Sweden signed separate resolutions protesting presecution of Czechoslovak scientists and educators.

Scandinavian press comment continued to approve President Truman's speeches in Washington and New York St. Patrick's Day.

Dougherty Repeats Stand Against UMT

Cardinal Declares Training Violates U. S. Traditions

Philadelphia, March 19 (AP).—Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, Archbishop of the Philadelphia Roman Catholic Diocese, today reaffirmed his opposition to peacetime universal military training.

Cardinal Doughterty is the spiritual leader of 978,870 Catholics in the archdiocese.

His view is opposite to that of Francis Cardinal Spellman, Archbishop of New York, who told a dinner of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in New York Wednesday night he favors universial military training.

Cardinal Dougherty in a statement gave nine reasons for opposing UMT.

1. It is against the traditions of this country.
2. Where is it in existence is precisely where most wars have taken place.
3. It would remove young men at a critical age from their home surroundings and safeguards.
4. It would throw them, with all their inexperience and without adequate safeguard, into frightful temptations calculated to undermine their morality and physical health.
5. Experience shows that even military officers are frequently corrupt and a bad example to those under them.
6. Venereal disease would rise in a frightful degree and break down the health of future fathers of families.
7. The expense of universal military training would involve annually millions, if not billions, of dollars to be paid by the taxpayers.
8. There seems to be no need in this country of universal military training, which is boosted most by soldiers, particularly Army officers who covet promotion and higher salaries.
9. The chances are that hereafter battles will be fought in the air, rather than on foot, and in that case large armies will not be needed.

VLADO CLEMENTIS, a Communist, has been appointed Foreign Minister of Czechoslovakia to succeed the late Jan Masaryk. Clementis, 46, a Slovak, had been Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs and Masaryk's chief assistant for several years

Red Journalist Is Named to Masaryk's Post

Prague, March 19 (AP).—A Communist journalist and lawyer, Vlado Clementis, succeeded the ate Jan Masaryk as Czechoslovakia's foreign minister today.

He joined Ana Pauker of Romania, Eric Monar of Hungary, Vassil Kolarov of Bulgaria, and Zygmunt Modzielewski of Poland in the lineup of Communist foreign ministers in eastern Europe.

Clementis, a 46-year-old Slovak, was deputy foreign minister under Masaryk who die' nine days ago.

Known as a "disciplined party man," the pipe-smoking Clementis is expected to make cominform leadership more evident in Prague.

Completion of the Soviet-sponsored network of defense treaties in eastern Europe may now become easier. Under Masaryk's foreign policy, Czechoslovakia had held back against signing any unconditional mutual assistance pacts.

The American embassy announced today that the United States news bulletin carrying the text of President Truman's address to the joint session of Congress had been barred from the mails here.

'We Are Talking Ourselves Into War,' Cohen Says

London, March 19 (U.P.).—Benjamin Cohen, assistant secretary general of the United Nations, said today that "we are talking ourselves into war."

Cohen is en route to Geneva for the Conference on Freedom of Information and the Press.

Cohen said the world situation is touchy but "not so dangerous as the interpreters of news make it out."

He deplored the attitude that peace is seldom worthy of newspaper headlines and commented, "In the United Nations only spectacular fights and disagreements get out as big news."

He said he was convinced newspaper readers were sincerely interested in peace and liked to read about it.

"Not one individual will escape the consequences of the next war," he declared. "People want to know more about peace and what their leaders are doing about it."

Ex-Delegate Poll Favors Stassen For Vice President

By the United Press

Harold E. Stassen is the top Republican choice for the Vicepresidency, regardless of who wins the GOP presidential nomination, according to a Nation-wide poll just completed by the National Broadcasting Company's Sunoco 3-Star Extra.

Editors of 3-Star Extra polled all the delegates to the 1944 Republican National Convention as a guide to present-day thinking among the type of persons who pick the presidential and vice presidential candidates.

The delegates picked Stassen as their first choice for the vice presidential nomination, followed by Governor Earl Warren of California and Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., of Massachusetts.

Results of the Republican presidential poll, announced Thursday night, showed New York's Gov. Thomas E. Dewey first choice, followed by Ohio's Senator Robert A. Taft and Michigan's Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg.

Mobilization Of Industry Plan Prepared

Ithaca, N. Y., March 19 (U.P.).—Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.), chairman of the War Investigation Committee, said today his committee will release a report within 10 days calling for industrial mobilization for war, to go into effect at any time Congress may direct.

"We want to get the provisions on the statutes so that industrial mobilization will not be as far behind as it was at the opening of the last war," Brewster said.

Here to address Cornell students and faculty on Republican policies, Brewster told a press conference that he believed "taxes can be reduced, despite the present world outlook."

"The amount of taxes collected have been grossly under-estimated," he said, "and we now have a large surplus."

The Senator admitted there had been little prospect of universal military training being voted by Congress up to the time of President Truman's speech, but said he believed now "Congress will give the matter serious consideration."

He said he had the "utmost respect" for the opinion of Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.), and that the probable best step, as proposed by the Michigan Senator, is to set up a law that will provide for the draft, when and if necessary. He indicated he agreed with Vandenberg that "we can have 300,000 volunteers before UMT, as Truman proposes, could go into effect."

Married Men To Be Exempt

base them on Forrestaal's recommendations.

In disclosing that married men will be placed in a deferred status, officials said the services would not want to take any of them under the limited call now contemplated. Veterans also will be put far down on the deferred list and not taken except in an all-out emergency mobilization, it was said.

The minimum age for any draft induction is expected to be 19, with the top age still unsettled. While Guardsmen and Reservists would be exempt from any registration and draft, they, of course, would be subject to call in an emergency.

Army Secretary Kenneth Royall, however, said this week that his department does not want to call up the National Guard at this time. Nor is there any plan now for calling any Reservists without their consent, he said. Royall added that there is doubt whether legal authority exists to forcibly call in the Reserves.

Legal authority does exist to order naval and Marine Corps reservists to active duty, it was learned, but officials are reluctant to exercise such powers. Any decision on this point will await a top-level determinatino of how and to what extent the Navy is to be expanded.

Meanwhile, a spot check of major Army recruiting stations throughout the country showed some surprising results. Recruiters in the midwest and Pacific Coast reported a spurt in applications for enlistments following President Truman's St. Patrick Day proposal for UMT and a temporary draft. Major East Coast cities and many sections of the South said they had few if any additional enlistments, while in Philadelphia a decided drop was experienceed.

Naval officials said several alternatives were open to them in enlarging the fleet.

If a rapid expansion is ordered, large numbers of reserves are vital. At present many ships are largely immobilized due to shortages of key ratings.

The heavy enlisted turnover now under way is partly responsible for this, as sizeable numbers of officers and petty officers are tied up training replacements for men going out and to fill shortages. UMT and a draft actually would lower the readiness of the fleet by making necessary additional withdrawals of officers and men from warships to serve as instructors at training camps.

If an emergency is considered imminent, the Navy would want to call up Reserves to fill out the crews of undermanned ships. If an emergency is expected at a later date, the fleet might be further immobilized to train draftees to fill out present undermanned ships and those now in mothballs.

Early yesterday, a Senate GOP leadership meeting put off a decision on President Truman's UMT and temporary draft proposals. They decided to await the conclusion of the Senate Armed Services Committee's hearings before taking a stand.

Several Republican chiefs, including Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, were said to be leaning toward a compromise draft proposal.

Under this, legislation providing for a revival of Selective Service would be put through speedily. Men would be registered and chosen for call but not actually inducted. The idea would be that voluntary enlistments would mount under the threat of later induction.

6.2 Billions Voted for Aid

voted two amendments certain to encounter trouble in conference.

The first, a product of Representative Karl Mundt (R., S. Dak.) sought to limit the freedom of western European countries to trade freely with Russia or her satellites. It forbade the Administration to send American commodities or products to any country which would use them in making its own products for shipment east of the Iron Curtain.

Mundt described it yesterday as a "security measure" intended to prevent the building up of Russia's war potential. His amendment, however, was bound to produce these objections when it reached the conference with the Senate:

1. It would be administratively unworkable, and i mpossible to check on every American product going into every piece of European goods for eastern Europe;

Would Erase Treaties

2. It would involve scrapping or revising existing British, Belgian and other trade agreements with Rssia, and would be resented as an attempt to control western Europe's export trade; and

(3) It would violate one of the basic assumptions of ERP, namely, that there must be a revival of healthy east-west trade in Europe. It has always been assumed in Senate ERP debates that western Europe could not re-export American supplies directly to eastern Europe, but would be free to send goods partly processed from American materials.

Impartiality on Materials

Another amendment approved by the House committee provided that the recipient countries must not discriminate against American companies developing sources of strategic raw materials within their territories. It called upon the recipient countries to submit schedules of the increased production of such materials "where practicable," and to deliver an agreed percentage of the output in partial repayment for American grants or loans.

The Senate bill simply provided for the sale, exchange or barter of such materials to the United States for stockpiling purposes, "upon reasonable terms and in reasonable quantities."

Would Review Reparations

Still a third controversial House committee amendment called for reconsideration and review of the entire German reparations program, including the dismantling of plants. This would be done in discussion between the Administrator and the Secretary of State. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee found the dismantling program entirely consistent with ERP, and objections to it on the Senate floor were voted down.

In its economic program for China the House committee decided that between 5 and 10 per cent of the funds be used to set up a Rural Reconstruction Commission composed of two Americans and three Chinese. Representative Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.) explained that this would operate "pilot" agricultural projects in an attempt to teach the Chinese more efficient farming methods.

Soviet to Ask Press Penalty

Geneva, Switzerland, March 19 (U.P.).—Russia and her satellite neighbors plan to send 73 delegates to the International Conference on Freedom of the Press to demand action against "warmongering" capitalist newspapers, it was learned today.

Russia's own delegation of 17 men will be headed by A. E. Bogomolov, Soviet Ambassador to France. Yugoslavia will send 21 delegates, Hungary 7, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria and Poland, 5 each, Albania 4 and the Ukraine, Byelorussia and Romania 3 each.

The United States delegation will number 25, including secretarial help.

The month-long conference is under the auspices of the United Nations Economic and Social Council.

Wallace Denounces Truman Prejudice

Fight for Peace Called Communistic To Avoid Facts, Candidate Charges

New York, March 19 (AP).—Henry A. Wallace said tonight President Truman "appealed to prejudice, because he could not answer us with reason," when he "attempted to brand as 'Communists' those who support our fight for peace."

"Millions of Americans who stand firmly opposed to his (Mr. Truman's) policies know that they are not Communists and they will not be frightened into accepting militarism because someone calls them Communists," Wallace declared in a prepared radio talk.

The speech was his second on consecutive nights in reply to the President's two addresses on St. Patrick's Day.

In a New York speech to the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, Mr. Truman had asserted he would not accept 'the political support of Henry Wallace and his Communists."

The third party presidential candidate said Mr. Truman "was trying to give the impression that it is only the Communists who disapprove of his policies of supporting Fascists, kings and reactionaries around the world, that it is only Communists who stand for repudiation of the Truman Doctrine, that it is only Communists who fight his plans to draft our young men and militarize the the country."

"Mr. Truman," Wallace added, "had done what other professional politicians have done before him—he has given the Communists credit for all the decent ideas which are advocated in this land of ours.

"I don't like to have the President give them credit for ideas that come from Isaiah and Christ, from Jefferson and Lincoln. We all remember the many times Franklin Roosevelt was charged with 'communism.'

"Like those who used this tactic against Roosevelt, he presents no evidence that I have ever advocated a single policy inconsistent with the most fundamental American concept of fredom.

"Either the Communists are better folks that we have been told to believe, or Mr. Truman is giving them such a reputation."

Wallace departed briefly from his prepared text to declare that "today the United States shocked the world by abandoning her support of the United Nations' decision to partition Palestine."

Americans, Wallace said, must "keep our word and carry out decisions once arrived at" or "we are going to lose all the great moral leadership we had at the end of the war. We must face our own responsibilities for the world crisis."

Wallace returned again and again to the argument that the charge of Communism was a red herring intended to confuse.

The word "communism," he said, "has been applied to every id ea slightly to the left of slavery. I am sure that I could take long passages from the work of Jefferson and Lincoln and get them banned from classrooms on the ground they are too radical."

At another point he said, "We cannot chart a course for America on blind date or blind loe for what the Russians do."

And again he asserted "the cry of 'Communists' is used against me because we are attacking entrenched interests, because we believe that it is possible to make peace with Russia, and because we know that you can't afford the economic theories of Karl Marx with atom bombs."

Finally he said, "Mr. Truman and the others can raise their false cry of 'Communist,' but they won't stop us from fighting for peace."

Wallace said these steps would help etsablish a durable peace:

Call off the Truman Doctrine, establish international control of Middle East oil and "other reservoirs of raw materials," repair "our share of the damage done to the United Nations," fight restrictions on United States civil liberties, halt "the trend toward militarization of America," and "look the situation over craefully and calmly find out just what major differences we have with the Russians."

Truman Urged To Quit Race

controversy could be settled within the party. His colleague, Senator Hill, is running for a place as delegate to the Democratic National Convention.

Hill has said he opposes the President's civil rights program, but it supporting Mr. Truman for the nomination.

Sparkman said he has found Southern people generally are "personally bitter" against the President.

"There is no use hiding our heads in the sand," he said. "People in the South are so bitter in their opposition to President Truman that they will never accept him as the nominee.

"'I wish very much that he would sense the situation and would withdraw.

The White House had no comment.

Meanwhile, Senator Hoey (D., N. C. said last night President Truman's anti-segregation proposal would be detrimental to both the Negro and the white races.

He said the fair employment practice commission bill "would annul all the laws of segregation by the States and would deny to these sovereign States the right to exercise their own rights of determining the matters within their own borders."

Teachers' Sick Leave

The requirement of the District school system that a teacher absent from class because of illness must pay the salary of her substitute is a senseless anachronism. It inflicts hardship upon the pupils no less than upon the teachers. For it exposes pupils to teachers too ill to conduct their classes capably yet too frugal to diminish their meager salaries by paying someone else to take over for them. Neither the Federal Government nor any reputable private employer would be guilty of this kind of barbarity in dealing with his hired hands. The granting of a reasonable amount of sick leave with full salary is now commonly recognized as an elementary condition of fair employment.

Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning and the Board of Education are in agreement on the principle that legislation should be sought to provide sick leave for District teachers. The cost is by no means prohibitive. Dr. Corning estimates that it would entail a total annual addition to the District's education bill of $180,000 if the pay for substitutes is set at $12 a day—a minimum if satisfactory substitutes are to be secured. The present rate of $7.50 to $9 is manifestly not sufficient to hire first-rate teachers. Penny-pinching in respect of a community's teachers—which is to say, of course, in respect of a community's children—is a very profligate form of economy.

Mine Accidents

Although John L. Lewis' current argument with the coal mine operators revolves around their failure to set up a pension system on his terms, the dispute is not unrelated to mine safety. A principal reason why a pension system is necessary is the appalling mine accident rate. Here Mr. Lewis can make a pretty good case against some of the operators as well as against the Federal and various State governments.

There have been few more complete indictments of bureaucratic indifference than presented by John Bartlow Martin's comprehensive article in the current Harper's, "The Blast in Centralia No. 5: A Mine Disaster No One Stopped." Just a year ago, an explosion in a mine of the Centralia (Ill.) Coal Co. took the lives of 111 miners. The blast was the more horrible because it was foreseen; safety report after safety report had been ignored. Mr. Martin chronicles in damning detail the unsuccessful attempts of a conscientious State mine inspector to get his superiors in the Illinois political satrapy to enforce the law against the coal company.

But the indictment does not stop there. It includes the Federal Bureau of Mines and the then Coal Mines Administration, which failed to follow up recommendations of Federal inspectors. And it includes, with especial significance, the United Mine Workers Union. The UMW not only did not exert its authority to pull its members out of an unsafe mine, but in fact took almost no notice of conditions at Centralia. Particularly pathetic were the fruitless efforts of the miners themselves to get the Governor of Illinois as well as their own union to take action. Altogether this sordid tale is a terrifying handbook in how divided responsibility results in no responsibility at all.

One of the most obnoxious outgrowths of the Centralia disaster was the "mourning period" which, as Mr. Martin shows, John L. Lewis used as a bludgeon in his personal feud with Secretary Krug. We termed it at the time "crocodile mourning," for Lewis' sudden concern for the safety of the miners under his command seemed at best sadly belated. And yet Lewis' castigation did serve the purpose of pointing out that only two mines in the entire country were living up fully to the terms of the Federal mine safety code.

Is the situation any better today? Perhaps so. Obviously, it was impossible to correct all mine defects at once, but the UMW reports that fewer violations are coming to its attention. However in Illinois, after a brief flurry, the Department of Mines and Minerals appears once more to be enmeshed in politics. And Federal enforcement authority was terminated when the mines were returned to private operators. All Federal inspectors can do is make reports and hope that they will be acted upon.

How serious the mine safety problem remains is indicated by figures from the United Mine Workers Journal recently quoted by Representative Melvin Price in the Congressional Record. During 1947 no fewer than 1165 coal miners were killed and 63,000 others were injured in mine accidents; and, statistically, during the last five years nearly two thirds of the country's coal miners have been killed or injured in accidents. Small wonder that coal miners are known for their fatalism, or that they put their trust in the dictatorial John L. Lewis. With no unified governmental enforcement power now in being, a particular responsibility devolves on Mr. Lewis and his union to keep a constant check on mine safety without the unhappy stimulus of another Centralia.

Immigration Boner

Perhaps the detention of Mme. Joliot-Curie by immigration officials at Ellis Island was a Communist plot to make the United States look ridiculous in the eyes of civilized men the world over. Perhaps it was nothing more than a piece of imbecile officiousness on the part of an overzealous individual in the Immigration and Naturalization Service. It is fortunate, at any rate, that Attorney General Clark had the good sense to undo this nonsense as speedily as possible and to set Mme. Joliot-Curie free. To have denied her admission to the United States would have been to have acknowledged the existence of an iron curtain here as impervious to reason as that which insulates the Soviet Union from the free world.

Mme. Joliot-Cprie, a Nobel Prize winner, the daughter of the discoverers of radium, is a French citizen of great honor and distinction. She was a leader of the French underground. She was Undersecretary of National Education, the first women to serve in the cabinet of her country. She is affiliated with no political party; and she derives no such affiliation in the minds of reasonable men from the fact that her husband is a Communist. The French Embassy here was entirely within its rights in promptly protesting her detention, since she had received a passport from her own government and a visa from ours. It is to be hoped the United States is not so insecure that its foundations will be shaken by her presence here for a fortnight.

Wallace's Support

The distinguishing feature of President Truman's address to the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick—his categorical refusal to accept "the political support of Henry Wallace and his Communists"—seemed, on the whole, rather more rhetorical than renunciatory. Mr. Wallace has expresed himself on several occasions, just lately with especial vehemence, in terms which make the contingency appear exceedingly remote. It is difficult, therefore, to escape the inference that Mr. Truman was not so much giving up an indorsement which might have been his had he been willing to pay the price as that he was pandering to what he presumed to be the prejudices of his Hibernian audience.

It seems to us by no means certain, moreover, that this piece of politicking will be beneficial to the President, even in the South. It cannot be doubted, of course, that Mr. Wallace has the disciplined backing of the country's Communists. But it would be silly to suppose that these are his only—or even his principal—source of support. There are loyal Americans who will vote for the third party candidate because, like him, they believe wistfully that even in the harsh realities of contemporary international affairs a soft answer can be counted upon to turn away Russian wrath. There are others, equally loyal, who are sickened by the frenetic disposition nowadays to apply the term "Communist" to anyone in disagreement with them. A good many citizens in the second category at least may be driven into the third party by the shabbiness of the President's name-calling Wednesday evening.

The support that Mr. Truman loses by such tactics is likely to go not to his Republican opponent but to Mr. Wallace; and the more prevalent the sense that the Democratic Party is doomed to defeat, the more readily will the liberal element in that party, regarding a Republican victory as certain, turn to Mr. Wallace with the thought of registering a protest against war and against violations of civil rights. We find this prospect truly disturbing. A vote for Wallace will be regarded in Moscow as a vote for Stalin, and the bigger it is the more convinced he will be of American disablement for the task of opposing Soviet aggression. The real tragedy of Mr. Wallace's position is that it cannot fail to foster the very dangers at which he is sincerely, though blindly, striking.

Big Bold Men

We learn from Esquire magazine that the "bold look" is now the style for men. Any hat, shirt, suit, shoe or tie that remotely suggests a Caspar Milquetoast personality should be promptly thrown away. The man of the moment must appear "rugged, virile, aggressive, dominant," He must express "leadership and authority." How? By wearing wider lapels, wing-tipped shoes, brighter hose and handkerchiefs, more casually draped suits, a new kind of shirt stitching. Thus this rugged individualist will be a fit consort for the droopy, ultra-feminine woman that the "new look" has produced. Thus men's-wear manufacturers may give their business a shot in the arm.

Men who value their basic freedom of immunity from style change, and from its attendant expense and pavement pounding, might well be concerned about this. For the style strategists, so far unable to goad the masculine trade out of bagging suits, faded shirts and tired hats by appeal to sartorial pride or the desire to keep up with the Joneses, are taking a more carnal tack. They are counting on no man's being able to resist a suave salesman's suggestion that a suit's rugged styling makes him look "red-blooded, manly and masterful," that a certain type of hat brim gives him the "bold, commanding American look." Women ages ago found out that this was a virtually foolproof method of handling men. Now, if it works with the promoters of men's wear, no telling where it will end. We think men should be alerted.

Press Conference

When Senator Vandenberg said that vision and courage are needed today, he might have added faith, for these are the trio of qualities that amount to statesmanship. Panic must be avoided like the plague. Of late there has been a sort of panic in evidence in the comment on Moscow's immediate intentions and what this country should do by way of checkmate. We may expect, in consequence, to see a rash of unwise proposals put forward in Congress. Under the head of semipanic was the President's comment last week that his faith in peace had been shaken. If it is, then the Marshall Plan ought to be scrapped and a massive lend-lease arrangement in war materials inaugurated. Certainly the statement was not calculated to reinforce Secretary Marshall's previous day's plea in behalf of calmness.

We underrate the great gift that the wise conduct of a press conference calls for. There are few masters of it. The gift calls for a quality of reticence and openness at the right time which amounts to genius. Is the answer, when there is no master left in the Administration, to destroy the mirror? At one time that was our thought, but to destroy this mirror might be to destroy a valuable vehicle of our democracy and a great weapon in the waging of the cold war.

Draft Revival

President Truman's recommendation for a resurrection of Selective Service seems to have carried considerable weight on Capitol Hill. There are, to be sure, a few crustacean-minded legislators who persist in ignoring world realities and maintain that the European crisis is manufactured. Chairman Leo E. Allen of the House Rules Committee, who is still sitting, molelike, on universal military training legislation, is one of them. Despite President Truman's request, Mr. Allen says that there is "no more prospect" than before for a House vote on UMT. But for the most part there seems to be a general recognition in Congress of the importance of building up and maintaining American military strength as the most effective means of bolstering Europe against further Russian encroachment. This willingness to look at the facts is perhaps the greatest difference between the present situation and that of 1940 and 1941.

What is the best way of bringing American power to bear quickly? At this juncture it is a revival of the draft. This is the only feasible means of rebuilding the armed forces to their statutory level—and together they now lack 300,000 men. Indeed, the subsequent recommendation of Secretary Forrestal that the authorized level of the Army be increased from 669,000 to 900,000 reserves the most serious consideration. For Russian intransigeance is certainly encouraged by the knowledge that at the present time we have only two deployable Army divisions and two Marine combat divisions.

But a mere increase in available military manpower is not enough. If our show of strength is to carry weight with the Russians, then they must know that it is not a flash in the pan. Thus it is essential to begin now the expansion of air power recommended by the presidential and congressional policy boards, on the basis of the unified plan which supposedly has been achieved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Likewise it is essential to furnish a backstop for the first-line forces with a trained reserve attainable only through universal training as the quickest means of increasing military manpower. This is the only alternative to maintaining standing forces of double their present size. Whatever the expense of taking necessary steps to supplement American security in these directions now, it will be far less costly than to be forced to do the same thing after Europe has fallen.

Japanese Press

When General MacArthur announced his availability for the Republican presidential nomination, he automatically became more than merely the Allied commander in Japan. He is now also a political figure, filling, in a sense, two sets of shoes at the same time. The same security considerations which rightfully govern comment on his position as the military chieftain in an occupied country do not apply to news of his candidacy. It is altogether proper that the Japanese people should receive full information about his political status. General MacArthur has done well, therefore, to revoke the ill-considered restrictions which had been imposed, no doubt by over-eager subordinates, on dispatches in the Japanese press.

The news of MacArthur's political aspirations need not alter the respect in which he is held by the Japanese, and indeed, it may serve as a needed catalyst. Numerous visitors to Japan have remarked the popular tendency to transfer to MacArthur some of the worship formerly given the Emperor. It is well that MacArthur is shedding this toga. For however much his position as a virtual demigod may have facilitated his occupation duties, it could not be regarded as a healthy condition for promoting genuine democracy in Japan. As a matter of fact, a case can be made out that the Japanese people have been shielded too carefully from political realities, and that the kind of democracy nurtured so far is too much of the hothouse variety. In the long run there can be no more effective way to inculcate political responsibility among the Japanese than to allow their newspapers a broad freedom of expression.

Letters To The Editor

Confidential Records

The press reports that President Truman has ordered Federal agencies to turn down any requests from Congress or the courts for secret papers on loyalty investigations of Government employes. Jefferson once attempted the same thing.

When Burr was on trial in 1807, at the instance of Jefferson, the defense asked the court to issue a subpoena requiring Jefferson to produce certain papers so that through them the innocence of Burr might be established. The Government objected, saying that such procedure was highly improper, that the President just could not be served with such a summons.

In a long and vitriolic speech, Luther Martin of Maryland, Burr's chief counsel, denounced the Administration for refusing to deliver the wanted papers. He said Jefferson was assuming to himself the knowledge of the Supreme Being, that he was wantonly keeping back papers necessary to prove Burr's innocence. Jefferson was no sovereign, he roared. "Will the President be insulted by the demand of a mere document?" he demanded. Punctilio to the President, he argued, was no bar to demanding that he produce certain papers in court.

John Marshall then added new glory to his name. He ruled that although the King of England may be beyond all ordinary summons, yet the President of the United States was no exception to the rule that in a proper case, even presidential records could be subpoenaed to court.

Now, if Burr, an individual, was entitled to have presidential records brought to court, how much more important is it that the American people at large know what goes on in this Administration. When the President instructs Federal agencies to turn down requests of Congress and the courts, it sounds like the high-handed Jefferson. CHARLES B. OWENS.

Civil Rights Bill

A recent issue of The Washington Post carried an article in which the pastor of the First Baptist Church of Washington, in addressing a religious group in the South, is reported to have stated "that he did not think the people were morally and spiritually prepared to accept the President's civil rights bill."

If Dr. Pruden is correctly quoted, it would appear that the laymen of the church have taken the lead in proclaiming the teachings and ideals of Jesus Christ. Every idea expressed in President Truman's civil rights bill is found in the Sermon on the Mount and in the Constitution of the United States. If the people are not morally and spiritually prepared, the preachers have failed to properly inform them.

Is it any wonder that lynchings, discriminations and injustices continued to be meted out to defenseless Negroes in the Bible belt?

Bombs In Valises?

The U.S.S.R. has not been impressed by the seriousness with which we regard its unwillingness to agree to an international control of atomic energy. It is feverishly at work putting the finishing touches on its own bomb.

We have the experience that dictators begin wars without the formalities still mentioned in international law books. We may therefore expect that the moment the disgruntled Kremlin has a stockpile of 100 bombs they will be promptly taken to the United States bit by bit in diplomatic valises and placed in strategic cities to be set off by automatic clockwork. Stalin will then have us at his mercy. He will be able to finish it all if things look desperate to him personally.

It is time to impose a thorough customs inspection on all imports, including diplomatic pouches and valises, originating in the Soviet Union and the countries which do not agree to a world-wide atomic control. Secrecy of clearly diplomatic messages need not be violated at this time.

JOHN A. GRANLUND.

Church And State

If the Protestant group for Separation of Church and State is really in earnest, let it demand that we stop paying the chaplains of our armed forces out of public funds. If it is wrong to pay nuns for teaching in public schools, or to use public funds to transport children to parochial schools, it is also wrong to have the Government maintain chapels at Army camps; it is also wrong to use public funds to pay for the services of chaplains. If each denomination had to support its own ministers and priests, the chaplaincy would greatly be improved and a lot of dead wood eliminated. For what religious organization would tolerate unqualified personnel on its payroll?

If this group for Separation of Church and State wants the President to recall Mr. Taylor from the Vatican, let it also demand the recall of the Protestant missionary who acts as our Ambassador to China. GERARD D. SEVIGNY.

Third Cavalry Trumpet

A friend of mine at the Library of Congress has just sent me Reporter Marshall Andrews' very interesting account in your issue of February 29 of the return of the 1861 silver trumpet to the Third Cavalry. (The story told of how in 1945 Mr. Brown called the trumpet to the attention of Col. Sidney Morgan, American attache to the Allied governments in London). In the interests of historical accuracy, may I be permitted the following corrections:

My meeting with Colonel Morgan occurred in May, 1946, nearly a year after General Eisenhower had accepted my offer of the trumpet made to him on VE-Day.

My office is at 79 Duke st., not 29, and no omnibuses are allowed to pass along that thoroughfare.

My business is that of a library and art agent, and not an antique dealer.

My father, having died several years earlier, could have taken no part in the original purchase or part of the Fenton collection.

RALPH A. BROWN.
London, England.

Editor's Note: Aside from the typographical error in Mr. Brown's address, the remaining differences appear to be discrepancies in recollection between Mr. Brown and Colonel Morgan.

United Nations Force

National armaments have never yet prevented war. I believe we must put an end to nationalism and armaments. In their place we will need an adequate United Nations force and a genuine internationalism. It could possibly be made effective whether the Russians come in or not. I mean disarmament in favor of a United Nations force. EDWIN T. BAUHAN.
Denver, Col.

Reactions To Truman's Address

Beneath the wild frenzy of war talk that has attended the President's call for the reenactment of Selective Service, there lies the basic fact of the weak incompetence and lack of foresight that has so characterized the Truman Administration. The need for a draft law is in truth an admission of the error of the President's ways in succumbing to the hysterical "bring the boys home" cries that brought about the emasculation of our armed forces in the fall and winter of 1945. This is particularly obvious when one considers the purpose of the draft's rebirth is simply to bring our forces up to the level that was determined in 1945 as necessary for our defense needs and world commitments.

LOUIS FLAX.
Washington.

The President's address was logical, convincing and sincere. To my way of thinking he said just what should have been said; and the spontaneous applause which interrupted him on several occasions gives evidence that I am not alone in this opinion.

I think it was a shocking exhibition on the part of the broadcasting company to allow the effect of the President's message to be spoiled by using this great occasion, with the tremendous publicity that it had, in a vain attempt to further the selfish motives of the Congressmen from Idaho and Missouri.

To criticize the President's address, from practically the same platform so far as the listening radio audience was concerned, was unsportsmanlike and it played right into the hands of the nation which seeks to divide public opinion and conquer through disunity.

CARROLL B. TYSON.
Hyattsville, Md.

Mr. Truman's address reveals how abstract our goals are, and how cumbersome our methods. For peace and freedom, Mr. Truman might have asked for the open door in Russia, a reciprocal trade agreement with the Soviets, and a commercial airline pact. For indirect threats, the President might have suggested that future attempts to deal with Russia be by the direct conference method, and have indicated a panel of American citizens qualified to make the try, Eric Johnston, Mrs. Roosevelt, Harold Stassen, Walter Reuther, Henry Wallace, Justice Douglas and Senators Byrd, Taft and Vandenberg would make quite a team!

WILBUR DUNBAR.
Boulder, Colo.

There was no political sidestepping in the President's speech. He called a spade a spade. The President said our forces will remain in Germany. That is the proper stand to take; it is a pity we did not keep more of our forces in Europe until a just peace had been assured. Let General MacArthur stay in Japan and complete his job there. He can serve his country far better in Japan than to run for President.

I feel it is the duty of Congress to uphold the President against the acts of Russia, and back the European democracies up 100 per cent. W. H. JEFFERY.
Norfolk, Va.

We still have a monopoly on the atom bomb. It is still our foremost power diplomat. Training troops and stationing them in Europe and the Middle East to exchange grimaces with the Russians is an expensive price to pay for face-making.

The President should have stressed the atom bomb. He should have demanded more and better planes, more funds for guided missiles, more technicians.

RANDOLPH MIFLETT.
Washington.

. . . I am not convinced that the "great bogey man" in eastern Europe is as bad as it appears. Truman's speech seems more like a plea for compulsory military training, alien to all preconceived ideals—and democracy.

'Peace' Appeal Tactics

By Malvina Lindsay

Leftist Women's Coup

IT THREATENS to be the same old story in Italy as in the rest of Europe—the left scoring in its tactics with women. Cleverest strategy in the Italian Communist campaign for the April 18 elections is the "peace" crusade of the Communist-dominated Union of Italian Women.

By calling a "peace" congress, marching 10,000 strong in a parade with doves of peace as symbols, and presenting a "peace" petition—signed reputedly by two million women—to the President of the Italian Republic, the union has grabbed and dramatized the peace issue. It is one on which Italy's women voters are most vulnerable—as indeed are women everywhere.

If the well organized Communist women can put across the propaganda that defeat of their party means another war, this will have strong bearing on the Italian women's vote in the coming election. In the Rome municipal elections last fall more women than men voted.

ALTHOUGH the Catholic Church is influencing many women against the Communist ticket, yet the unhappy lot of Italian women makes them easier prey than men for Communist peace propaganda and promises. Moreover, the rightist and center parties have not recognized nor organized women as have the Communists. The conservative element among the Christian Democrats is reported unfavorable to encouraging women in political leadership.

Although Italian women now have the vote, they still suffer inequities from old-time laws. They pay more than men to go to universities; in trades they receive 30 per cent less wages than men. Even many so-called political liberals frown on their participation in politics. And the masses of Italian women have a tragic time trying to feed and clothe their families as they contend with inflation and black markets. Women also are particularly aware of the great contrasts in living between rich and poor, and this inclines them to listen to Communist agitators.

Not all members of the Union of Italian Women are Communists, and the organization is trying to appear nonpartisan. It even included an open-air mass in its "peace" demonstration as a bid to Catholic women. But the Communists are recognized as being in control of it, as they are of many of the more aggressive women's organizations of Europe. They have moved fast and played a smart game with the new feminine forces entering the postwar political scene.

WOMEN LEADERS in Europe and the United States have been more alert to this than have men officials. An effort to encourage the feminine anti-Communist forces of Europe was made last September when the World Women's Fellowship meeting was held in Paris with delegates from 47 countries. This was in part an answer to the Women's International Democratic Federation organized in Paris in 1945, the only world group in which Soviet women have participated.

One form of help that would now strengthen European women in free self-expression would be for American groups to do more in providing supplies, financial aid and moral backing to the grass-roots women's clubs springing up in Germany, Greece and elsewhere.

Men, of course, are still in the saddle politically in all countries, and it largely depends on them whether women are given offices, party posts, greater political and economic opportunity and encouraged in their organization activities. Officials generally have missed the boat on this, particularly in Greece, in Italy, the western zones of Germany and to an extent in France.

Men leaders have not been overly smart about this even in England and the United States. Unless a larger number of women show up in the national party conventions in this country this June than have formerly crashed these bodies, it would indeed seem that the Bourbon mind, here as elsewhere, was still incapable of learning anything.

Indian Commissioner

Now is the time for appointment of a commissioner of Indian Affairs who is himself an Indian.

The resignation of capable, earnest William A. Brophy, who labored indefatigably on behalf of American Indians as long as his health permitted, will be unfortunate for those people unless the next commissioner is as devoted to their interests as he.

What more sensible than an Indian as commissioner to serve those governmentally restricted citizens? There never has been one in the more than a century of Government control.

The Indians must work their way out of Government wardship and dependence on white men. Appointment of one of their own as commissioner would inspire their sorely needed confidence in themselves. Moreover, an Indian understands other Indians as white men cannot. Indians need understanding and encouragement to do for themselves.

But the new commissioner should not be a professional Indian interested chiefly in feeding at the public trough or greedy of power; nor yet an individual of mixed blood in whom the degree of Indian lineage is so small as to serve only as a talking point.

The right man might even be continued in office despite any change of administration. His appeal to the public conscience might be such as to take the job out of partisan politics.

Thinking Ahead

A Communication

THE MOMENT has passed for quarreling with the national defense recommendations made by President Truman in his address to Congress on Wednesday. Since the admission of Argentina to the United Nations under United States sponsorship in April, 1945, almost the entire foreign policy of this Government, no doubt in spite of the virtuous intentions of the stereotyped statesmen running it, has resulted in inspiring force moves on the part of U. S. S. R. as an antagonist in world power politics. Today these force moves require mobilization of counterforces by ourselves.

This point has been reached on the road. Dealing, in the case of the U. S. S. R., with the most chronically suspicious and dogmatic statesmen of modern history, American foreign-policy makers have spent the three years during which the foundations of a peace might have been laid, intensifying suspicion in their U. S. S. R. opposite numbers and stiffening them in their addictions to Marxist dogmas. There can be no retreat from these facts in the case. There is merely the question of how our policy-makers propose to guide developments in the factual situation from now on.

AS WE reassemble our armaments, let us at least then take occasion from the present crisis to think through our problems of security and survival from here on out; and our problems of preserving such a civilization's values as, in the wake of atomic conflict, may turn out to be preservable.

By the rearmament program which our policy-makers have trapped us in, the American people run three risks:

1. Of inciting a more desperate rush on the part of distressed European and Asiatic peoples to link their politics with those of Marxist Russia; as their nearest and apparently surest, or at any rate their most immediately powerful protector from world warfare.

2. Of inciting the U. S. S. R. to some offensive, political or military, in western Europe capable of provoking——

3. World War III itself.

Thus the slightest steps into the process of examining our present situation in the light of Mr. Truman's rearmament program bring us to the necessity of trying to think through the question of what we get out of war with the Soviet Union if we win it.

TWO TYPES of victory presumably are possible.

In the one case, after a sufficent atomic bomb offensive, American expeditionary forces can invade Russia and occupy it. Considering the efficiency record of American occupation forces twice in Germany, various times in Latin America and once in the late Southern Confederacy, little expectation can be entertained that we should produce a peaceable, or even an enforcedly secure world by military conquest of Russia.

In another preview of our World War III victory, it is assumed that the U. S. S. R.'s leaders and policy-makers can be brought to their knees by a simple atomic bomb attack on the Russian production centers, with no occupation problems involved. Some protagonists of this strategy offer assurances, at least conversationally, that the Russian people will promptly overthrow the Stalinist police state for invoking this form of punishment. And, presumably in gratitude for liberation by the A-bomb, they will reconvert their society into so faithful a replica of our own that Washington's statesmen will never have a "Russian problem" to bother their heads with for the rest of their born days.

Whether this fantasy is more romantically wishful than the Wallaceite fiction that the Russians are merely a reasonably disgruntled group of Iowa farmers who will pipe down after a cozy chat over tea and vodka, is a question better left for the twenty-second century's historians.

WHATEVER our premises, thinking through rather than wishfully romanticizing World War III may lead to different conclusions.

By wastage simply of our own resources in one more global "showdown," the American people, for example, may be sufficiently impoverished—not to say "proletarianized"—to bring them to the verge of communism themselves.

Nor should it be forgotten, in our emotional enthusiasms for peace through combat, that we have not yet won the war which Napoleon and Hitler failed to win.

None of this is a plea in extenuation of the sins of the Soviet Russian government in world power politics, or of the worse sin of the Russian leaders in refusing to seek an understanding of the American people and their still willing friendship. None of it certainly is an appeal for appeasing Russia.

Something in the situation, however, calls to be paused over as the clank of our rearmament process begins.

IT IS later, perhaps, than even Secretary of State Marshall thinks.

But it is not yet too late for our leaders and policy-makers, standing in arms on the crest of the high road to war, to make clear to the Russian and to all other peoples that Americans are not a convention of swashbuckling showdown-seekers, but a Government and a Nation of good will; that, above all other enterprises in world politics and statesmanship, we are dedicated to removing the murderous alternatives which our gestures and armaments pose for society, from the life of the human race in these times.

It is not for the private citizen to prescribe the specific methods by which this dedication can be carried out in action. It is for the leaders and policy-makers, with their authority, their vast information facilities and their responsibilities, to discover the "know how" of their civilization's security and to use it now.

Report to Cite Joliot-Curie As Communist

Paris, March 19 (AP).—A defense official today said the Communist sympathies of atom expert Frederic Joliot-Curie would be called to the attention of the French National Assembly.

The statement was made by Paul Anxionnaz, chairman of the Assembly's defense committee. Anxionnaz said he was uneasy over the French scientist's "open Communist sympathies." A high American official in Paris said the United States had "long been concerned" ver Joliot-Curie's politics.

The scientist's wife, Irene, was held by United States immigration authorities at Ellis Island and then released today.

Before her release was announced, the Paris Communist newspaper, Ce Soir, described her detention as "an outrage to science and an affront to France."

Her husband was named to head France's Atomic Energy Commission while Gen. Charles de Gaulle was head of the provisional government. De Gaulle now is the leader of the French People's Party, arch foe of the Communists.

Joliot-Curie announced publicly in 1945 that he was joining the Communist Party. The party secretary said he was still a member in good standing. He has declared repeatedly that the United States failed to give him credit for early experiments in atomic research.

Recently France appropriated 10 million dollars for Joliot-Curie's commission. Most of the money will be spent in an experimental station near Versailles.

French Deputy Accused as Ex-Red Agent

Paris, March 19 (U.P.).—Shouting deputies turned the Assembly into pandemonium today for the second time this week when Rightists challenged Communist Deputy Pierre Villon to deny that he was a former members of the Russian secret police.

At the same time, 8 of 11 Russians arrested Wednesday for holding secret meetings of the outlawed "Union of Soviet Citizens" were deported to the Soviet occupation zone of Germany by the security police.

Villon announced to the Assembly that he planned to file libel action against the publishers of a book by Jean Valtin (Eugene Krebs) and newspapers which named him as a former OGPU agent.

Popular Republican Philippe Livry Level repeatedly challenged Villon to deny the charge and Villon shouted back "You're a crook." The chamber reverberated with catcalls and shouted insults.

Livry Level said persistently: "Monsieur Villon, you have not yet denied."

A provisional national defense budget of 46,650,000,000 francs ($219,255,000) for April and May was finally approved by a vote of 418 to 183 with Communists voting solidly against it.

Today's deportations brought to approximately 52 the number of Soviet citizens expelled or deported since November.

Kamp Would Take Jail Term To Keep Citizenship Rating

Joseph R. Kamp, chairman of the Constitutional Educational League, convicted Wednesday of contempt of Congress, yesterday rejected a possibility of being placed on probation instead of serving a jail sentence.

As visiting Federal Judge Ben Moore of Westing in District Court indicated a possibility of probation, Kamp declared he opposed the move because it might imply "I was not a good citizen." Later counsel for Kamp said that probation would be satisfactory.

Moore then continued the sentence date until next Wednesday pending report from probation authorities.

In the meantime, the House is considering a resolution introduced March 8 by Representative Ralph Church (R., Ill.) to withdraw the contempt citation. Church, as a member of the House Committee on Political Expenditures in 1944 voted against the citation of Kamp who had refused to turn over certain records of donations to the committee.

Moore's comments as Kamp appeared for sentencing yesterday showed a disposition to leniency as the jurist remarked: "I understand Mr. Kamp is a very active man . . . the evidence presented shows that though at times Mr. Kamp has been vituperative, he has been campaigning against people now considered enemies of our country . . . he may have gone too far in including a lot of people who are not . . ."

Kamp had published a number of booklets during the war and immediately before promoting the philosophy that the Government was dominated by Communists.

One pamphlet printed in 1942 had inscribed at the top in small printing, "We Must Win! We Will Win! But . . ." and then in larger letters, "Why Win the War . . ." then in smaller letters again "and lose what we're fighting for?"

The booklet went on to say "Why avenge Pearl Harbor and . . . at the same time invite a worse catastrophe from sneaking underhanded enemies within the Government itself . . ."

Meanwhile Dr. Edward K. Barsky and 10 other members of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee, now under jail sentence for contempt, remained free on $500 bond pending a move to take their case to the Supreme Court.

United States," Saillant said he was asked by immigration authorities if he were a Communist. He said he was not and never had been a member of the Communist Party.

He said he then was asked how he voted in the French elections.

"I replied," he said, "that in France the constitution guarantees French citizens the secrecy of the ballot.

"I was not asked any more questions like that."

Plans to See Einstein

The purpose of her visit was to lecture on benalf of Spanish Loyalist refugees from the Franco regime who are now in France. She said she also would buy equipment for her Paris laboratory and would see Dr. Albert Einstein.

(In Paris, her husband, Frederic, a Communist, said Dr. Einstein was one of those who invited her to visit the United States.)

(Mrs. Joliot-Curie's sister, Eve Curie, is editor of the pro-De-Gaullist newspaper, "Paris-Presse," and is well-known in Washington.)

The organization sponsoring her American lectures has been named as a Communist front organization by the Department of Justice. Its chairman, Dr. Edward Barsky, was convicted of contempt of Congress when he refused information to the Un-American Activities Committee.

Asked if she were a Communist, she said she was "in many things, but not in all things."

A newsman wanted to know if Russia had an atomic bomb, and she said: "I know absolutely nothing about it."

Sees No Russian Menace

She said she was confined in a room on Ellis Island with three young women. It was 'very clean," but, she added, it was not very amiable."

Declaring that anti-facist aid did not find as much favor by some as help to "some Nazis," Mrs. Joliot-Curie said, "It's not that I want to criticize help to German children. But there is not the same proportion of assistance rendered them as there is to the Spanish refugees."

She said she did not believe at all in any possibility of aggression by Russia." The Communist Party in France is "stationary," and is not advancing, she said.

Attorney General Clark ordered her released for the length of her visitor's visa, which is two weeks. Immigration officials here declined comment on her detention.

[At Washington, the Associated Press reported the Justice Department said Mrs. Joliot-Curie was detained at Ellis Island because her entry into this country may be "prejudicial to the best interest of the United States."]

Mrs. Joliot-Curie was taken into custody as soon as she landed from an Air France plane yesterday afternoon.

Annapolis, Md., March 19 (AP).—Governor Lane urged all eligible Marylanders today to vote in the May and November elections.

"I feel it incumbent upon me," he said, "in the face of the critical issues facing our country, to urge all residents of Maryland eligible to participate in the forthcoming elections, primary and general, to register and cast their ballots."

In addition to announced dates, additional registrations will be taken on April 27, the Governor said. The extra day is provided throughout the State except in Baltimore City, Montgomery and Washington Counties. Those places have permanent registration systems.

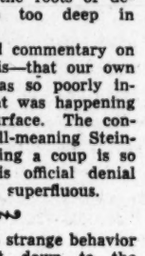
Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Wallace's Contribution To War

HENRY WALLACE is pretty well known in this country. Among his following he is a hero with overtones of martyrdom. For most Americans he is something between a well-meaning visionary and a dangerous crackpot.



Childs

But his press conference in New York the other day surprised even those who have watched him at close range through the years. In this interview he suggested that the American Ambassador in Czechoslovakia, Laurence A. Steinhardt, had tried to bring about a rightist assault on the coalition government in Prague. This plot, Wallace plainly intimated, justified the Communists in seizing power and savagely repressing every kind of dissent and protest.

Anything further from the truth would be hard to imagine. Steinhardt left Czechoslovakia on November 24, 1947, and was in the United States until shortly before he returned to Prague on February 19, 1948. The Communists started their grab for power on February 17.

Quite apart, however, from this matter of dates is the fact that Steinhardt was so little aware of what was happening in Czechoslovakia. Even on the boat returning to Europe a few days before the crisis, he said that the Communists would never be able to take power by force because the roots of democracy were too deep in Czechoslovakia.

This is a sad commentary on the Czech crisis—that our own Government was so poorly informed on what was happening beneath the surface. The concept of the well-meaning Steinhardt engineering a coup is so absurd that his official denial in Prague was superfluous.

WALLACE'S strange behavior might be put down to the prompting of the Communists and fellow-travelers at his elbow, and therefore might be ignored if it were not for the real harm that he does abroad. Another example of this mischief has just come to hand.

Jennie Lee of the British Labor Party, wife of Aneurin Bevan, Minister of Health, and herself a member of Parliament for many years, is one of the left-wingers whom Wallace set out to win when he went on his barnstorming tour of Europe a year ago. A recent letter from Miss Lee to the office of Americans for Democratic Action here in Washington tells of Wallace's latest maneuver.

"The British press," Miss Lee wrote, "is featuring today a statement by Henry Wallace to the effect that 'capitalist American pressure has compelled the Labor government of Britain indefinitely to postpone the nationalization of steel.'

"This is a lie. Where does Wallace get that sort of story? I am taking time off to write this note from the committee (of Parliament) dealing with the nationalization of gas. After coal, gas and electricity, comes steel.

"At the last trade-union conference, a definite and public undertaking was given by this government that steel would be nationalized by this Parliament, which means, in terms of parliamentary procedure, that a beginning will have to be made next session.

"This Wallace statement shocks me. Maybe he has been misquoted, but if not, what can be made of a man of reputedly high moral character deliberately bearing false witness?"

THIS LAST is a question a great many people are beginning to ask. The motive of the Wallace statement in the British press is obvious enough. It was to try to persuade the rank and file of the Labor Party, especially the left wing, that the United States was dictating British internal policy. By this means they would be brought to reject the Marshall Plan.

The British Laborites are not quite so gullible. On Wallace's tour of Britain, when he praised England's social democracy and forgot the denunciations of British imperialism that he had used on audiences in America, he made few converts.

When Jennie Lee came to this country last November she addressed a series of meetings arranged by ADA in a dozen cities. ADA is the liberal-labor organization opposed to Wallace and his third-party adventure.

Wallace professes to be the apostle of peace. That is the chief basis of his appeal for votes. Yet, by providing the Communists with justification for such power grabs as the one that occurred in Prague, he is probably contributing as much as any single individual toward making war with Russia inevitable.

The charitable assumption is that Wallace is blinded, either by his own emotions of ambition and revenge or by the Communist delusion. But to follow him, even in a vote of protest, one must also be blind and deaf and dumb.

Ex-School Principal Finds Missionary's Life Exciting

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Miss Lynda Carver, former principal of Montgomery Hills (Md.) Junior High School, finds her new life as missionary to Iraq "very exciting."

"There is a strong spirit of nationalism and a growing sense of the power of the people," she writes us from Baghdad, where she teaches in the American School for Girls, a Presbyterian mission post.

"The world has become smaller so quickly, bringing increased contacts between the East and West, with such intricate problems to be solved," she stated. "This condition makes school work very difficult, as these national and local problems have their repercussions among all students, especially the college group which represents one of the more educated groups here."

Miss Carver reported that her Christmas cards and presents for American friends were lost en route. They had been entrusted to a friend flying to the United States.

The missionary, whose work is partly financed by the National Presbyterian Church, 18th and N sts. nw., her home church, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Carver, 2150 California st. nw. As a young woman, she was president of the Covenant Fellowship Christian Endeavor Society of the National Presbyterian Church. She went to Baghdad early in 1947.

Miss Carver informs us that she has passed her first-year Arabic examination, making her eligible for voting membership in the Mission. "I am now studying for the second-year examination and shall probably take over the school next September," she says.

Catholic Laymen Rehabilitate Boys

The Waashington Society of St. Vincent de Paul is aiding rehabilitation of Negro boys committed to the Industrial Home School at Blue Plains.

Sparking the movement is George W. Johnson, sr., vice president of the St. Vincent de Paul Society in Washington and member of St. Augustine's Church, 15th and V sts. nw.

President William A. Prater of St Augustine's Parish Conference, and Johnson, led a delegation of laymen to the Industrial Home School last Sunday to get acquainted with the boys and gain their confidence, in order to help them when released. Others in the group were Armond Cole, Joseph N. Jackson, Joseph E. Johnson, Charles Quander, Howard J. Quander, Daniel Spriggs and Dr. Joseph Triggs.

Society Vice President Johnson said:

"This is frankly a move to reduce the number of inmates of the Industrial Home School by extending a helping hand to first offenders so they may not have to be committed to the school, and also by personal attention to those already released or who may in the future be released, to turn away from bad companionship."

C. U. to Honor Head Of Friars in Rome

An honorary degree of doctor of laws will be conferred upon the Most Rev. Emmanuel Suarez, O.P., of Rome, master general of the Order of Friars Preachers, tomorrow at 4 p. m. He is the eighteenth successor to St. Dominic.

The ceremony will take place during a convocation in the auditorium of McMahon Hall, Catholic University. The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington and chancellor of the institution, will preside.

The Order of Friars Preachers was among the first of the religious orders to establish a house of studies—the Dominican House of Studies—in Washington, affiliated with the Catholic University. The order has for years had members on the university's faculty, and the department of philosophy is now headed by the Very Rev. Ignatius Smith, O.P.

The ceremonies tomorrow will open with a selection by the university choir. Greetings will be given by the Right Rev. Msgr. Patrick J. McCormick, rector of the university. The Right Rev. Msgr. Edward B. Jordan, vice rector of the university, will read the citation, and Chancellor O'Boyle will confer the degree. Doctor Suarez will respond. A selection by the choir will close the formal ceremonies, which will be followed by a reception in honor of the distinguished Dominican in the office of the vice rector.

Federal Writ Bars Atom Strike At Oak Ridge for 80 Days

Knoxville, Tenn., March 19 (AP).—A Federal court today enjoined an AFL union from carrying out a possible midnight strike at the atomic bomb laboratory at nearby Oak Ridge.

The injunction, obtained on orders issued by President Truman, was granted here by Federal Judge George C. Taylor. It restrains some 900 AFL production workers at Oak Ridge national laboratory from walking off their jobs for the next 80 days.

It also forbids the Carbide & Carbon Chemicals Corp. from disturbing the status quo of labor conditions at the plant.

The action came as officials of the company and the atomic trades and labor council failed to agree on terms of a new contract.

The injunction also marked the first time that the national emergency provision of the Taft-Hartley labor law had been invoked to head off a strike.

The union's old agreement with Monsanto expired March 1 when Carbide took over operation of the research laboratory.

Emergency Step Weighed In Coal Strike

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Government officials yesterday were weighing the question of whether or not to invoke the national emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act against the soft coal strike.

Most of those close to the situation were believed to have given up hope for a quick settlement through negotiation by John L. Lewis and the operators.

They appeared to be waiting, however, for Lewis' reaction to a proposal from the operators, made yesterday. It asked him to order the 350,000 striking miners back to work and then enter collective bargaining discussions over the issues of the controversy.

The suggestion was made in a letter to United Mine Workers' head, signed by representatives of the major mine owners' association.

Their letter said that there was now a "concerted refusal" of the miners to work and that this constituted a breach of contract. It denied that the operators had violated any provision of the contract, but added that if Lewis thought there was a dispute under the agreement they would meet with him to discuss it.

First, however, the letter said that the miners must return to work, and asked that Lewis give his union members instructions to this effect.

Charles O'Neill, operators' spokesman, declared at a press conference that by tradition there could be no collective bargaining unless the mine workers were on the job.

There was no comment from Lewis on the proposal. Neither was there any sign from him that he would join in an invitation to go to court to help settle the dispute.

The issue is over the failure to set up a pension plan for miners, to be paid out of an employer-supported welfare fund. The fund was to be administered by three trustees. Lewis for the miners, Ezra Van Horn for the operators and a neutral member. The neutral resigned last January and no one has been agreed upon to replace him.

Earlier this week Van Horn asked Lewis to join him, as provided in the contract, to petition a Federal court to name the third member. He gave Lewis until last midnight.

If Lewis failed to act on the suggestion, it was indicated yesterday that Van Horn will file a petition alone, perhaps today.

By yesterday, the strike had caused curtailment of operations in at least two steel mills, and resulted in the layoffs of 15,000 men in other industries, mostly employes of railroads with large coal-carrying traffic.

Cyrus S. Ching, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, was thought to be making a last-ditch attempt yesterday to arrange a meeting between Lewis and Van Horn. He refused to comment during the day, however, and could not be reached last night.

At his press conference, O'Neill was questioned on whether the operators would take legal steps against Lewis. These might be either charging him with unfair labor practices before the National Labor Relations Board, or suing for damages for breach of contract under the Taft-Hartley Act.

O'Neill said these were questions for the future, and matters of individual decision by each company. His own opinion was, he said, that Lewis had breached the contract and that the operators had a right to sue.

But, a reporter pointed out, the contract committed the miners to work only if they were "able and willing;" accordingly, the strike was not a violation of anything the miners promised.

O'Neill disagreed. He said his understanding was that the "able and willing" clause referred only to individuals, in connection, for instance, with mine safety disputes. It did not apply, he thought, to a "concerted" refusal to work.

Strict Orders Given to Save District Coal

The District Commissioners yesterday ordered "all coal-using agencies of the local government to "exercise most stringent conservation measures in the use of coal."

The move was taken on recommendation of Purchasing Agent Ronald Brennan. The latter had received a letter from E. A. Snyder, deputy director of the Bureau of Federal Supply, advising that ". . . stocks of bituminous coal on hand and in transit from the mines will suffice for Federal and District requirements for a period of two weeks."

Meanwhile, Union Station attaches announced that only eight local trains will be cancelled because of the Office of Defense Transportation order reducing steam-operated train service. The directive calls for a 25 per cent slash, effective at midnight tomorrow, due to the coal mine stoppage.

The Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad will abandon two daily runs between Washington and Richmond, one leaving here at 5 p. m. and the other leaving Richmond at 7:30 a. m.

The Baltimore & Ohio will cancel trains leaving here at 7:05 a. m. and 4:35 p. m. for Baltimore and 4:50 p. m. for Brunswick, Md. Also cancelled are runs arriving from Brunswick at 8:10 a. m. and from Baltimore at 7:15 a. m. and 2:30 p. m.

W. M. Taylor, traffic manager for R. F. & P., revealed that the firm has canceled its contract to haul the Ringling Bros.-Barnum & Bailey Circus from Richmond to Washington en route to New York for a grand opening April 7, and a contract to haul the Strates Shows circus, which he said was due in Washington March 28.

Increase of 3.2 Million Acres In '48 Farm Planting Planned

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The American farmer is once more planning to do his best to help feed the world.

In its first important forecast for the year, the Government Crop Reporting Board yesterday reported that the Nation's farmers plan to plant 361 million acres, or 3.2 million more than were harvested last year.

With the exception of the war years of 1943 and 1944, this is the largest area planned for planting at this time of the year since 1937.

The recent severe break in prices of farm products, bringing the important ones down from a quarter to a third of January highs, apparently didn't affect the farmer's wish to grow all he can.

Corn Acreage Small

Startling in the report, and indicating that the shortage of meat supplies now bothering the country may continue for several years, is the forecast that the corn acreage will be the smallest in 50 years.

This year's indication is for 86,131,000 acres of corn—which is just a shade below the 86,168,000 of last year. But it is 5.6 million acres (about 7 per cent) smaller than the 10-year (1937-46) average.

The report, which was released on the dot of 3 o'clock, went under immediate scrutiny by the meat experts at the Department of Agriculture.

The figures on corn were particularly studied, as corn is the raw material from which meat, milk and poultry come. Last year's corn crop was very short. The result is a serious drop in meat production this year.

Other Grains Up

Offsetting the corn report to some extent are the figures for other feed grains. The acreage to be sown in oats will be 7 per cent above last year—from 42 to 45 million. Barley is more than 5 per cent higher than 1947—from 12 to 12½ million acres.

Many farmers, it is believed, turned from corn to earlier growing oats and barley in order to more quickly replenish dwindling stocks of feed grains.

The report indicated that with favorable weather another bumper wheat crop is possible.

The spring wheat acreage planned for the year is the same as a year ago—with a large increase in acreage for durum wheat. (Durum is a wheat adapted for spaghetti and macaroni making; it is not good for bread and bakery products.)

"To a record winter wheat acreage," the report says, "may be added a spring wheat acreage only slightly smaller than in 1947, to give a current planted acreage of all wheat a half-million acres more than last year.

Rye Shows Increase

"Rye acreage (like wheat, a bread grain) also is larger than last year, while rice acreage is expected to be only one per cent smaller.

"Winter wheat may have suffered some setback from the severe cold and storms of March 10-13 in the Great Plains area, but little loss of actual acreage is expected to result.

"Total abandonment of winter wheat, however, is expected to be much larger than in the last two seasons."

Oil seeds acreage will be smaller than last year. An increase of 6 per cent in flax will be overcome by a 10 per cent drop in soybeans and a 4 per cent drop in peanuts.

Farm labor appears more readily available than in recent years, the report says. Demand for farms by tenants in the Midwest is greater than the supply. The South reports many sections with a full quota of croppers for the first time in years.

More Potatoes Planted

Potatoes will be planted on a slightly larger acreage; but there will be less beans, peas, sugarbeets and tobacco. "Hay meadows and pastures may be reduced and idle lands put back into crops," the report says.

Of importance in the three-State area around Washington are the following figures, giving this year's major crops compared with last year's acreage:

CORN: Maryland, 490,000 acres this year; 458,000 last year; Virginia, 1,170,000 this year; 1,136,000 last year; West Virginia, 312,000 and 309,000.

OATS: Maryland, 46,000 and 45,000; Virginia, 178,000 and 159,000; West Virginia, 86,000 and 83,000.

BARLEY: Maryland, 81,000 and 79,000; Virginia, 99,000 and 86,000; West Virginia, 7000 and 8000.

HAY: Maryland, 445,000 and 449,000; Virginia, 1,446,000 this year; 1,351,000 last year; West Virginia, 810,000, same as last year.

SOYBEANS: Maryland, 62,000 this year, 70,000 last year; Virginia, unchanged 150,000 acres; West Virginia, 16,000 against 19,000 last year.

The Maryland tobacco acreage is forecast at 44,200 acres, only 92 per cent of last year's 48,000.

Virginia's tobacco crop is set at 116,600 acres this year, only 81 per cent of last year's 143,400 acres.

A MESSAGE TO THE NATION'S CAPITAL IN SUPPORT OF THE AMERICAN RED CROSS BY

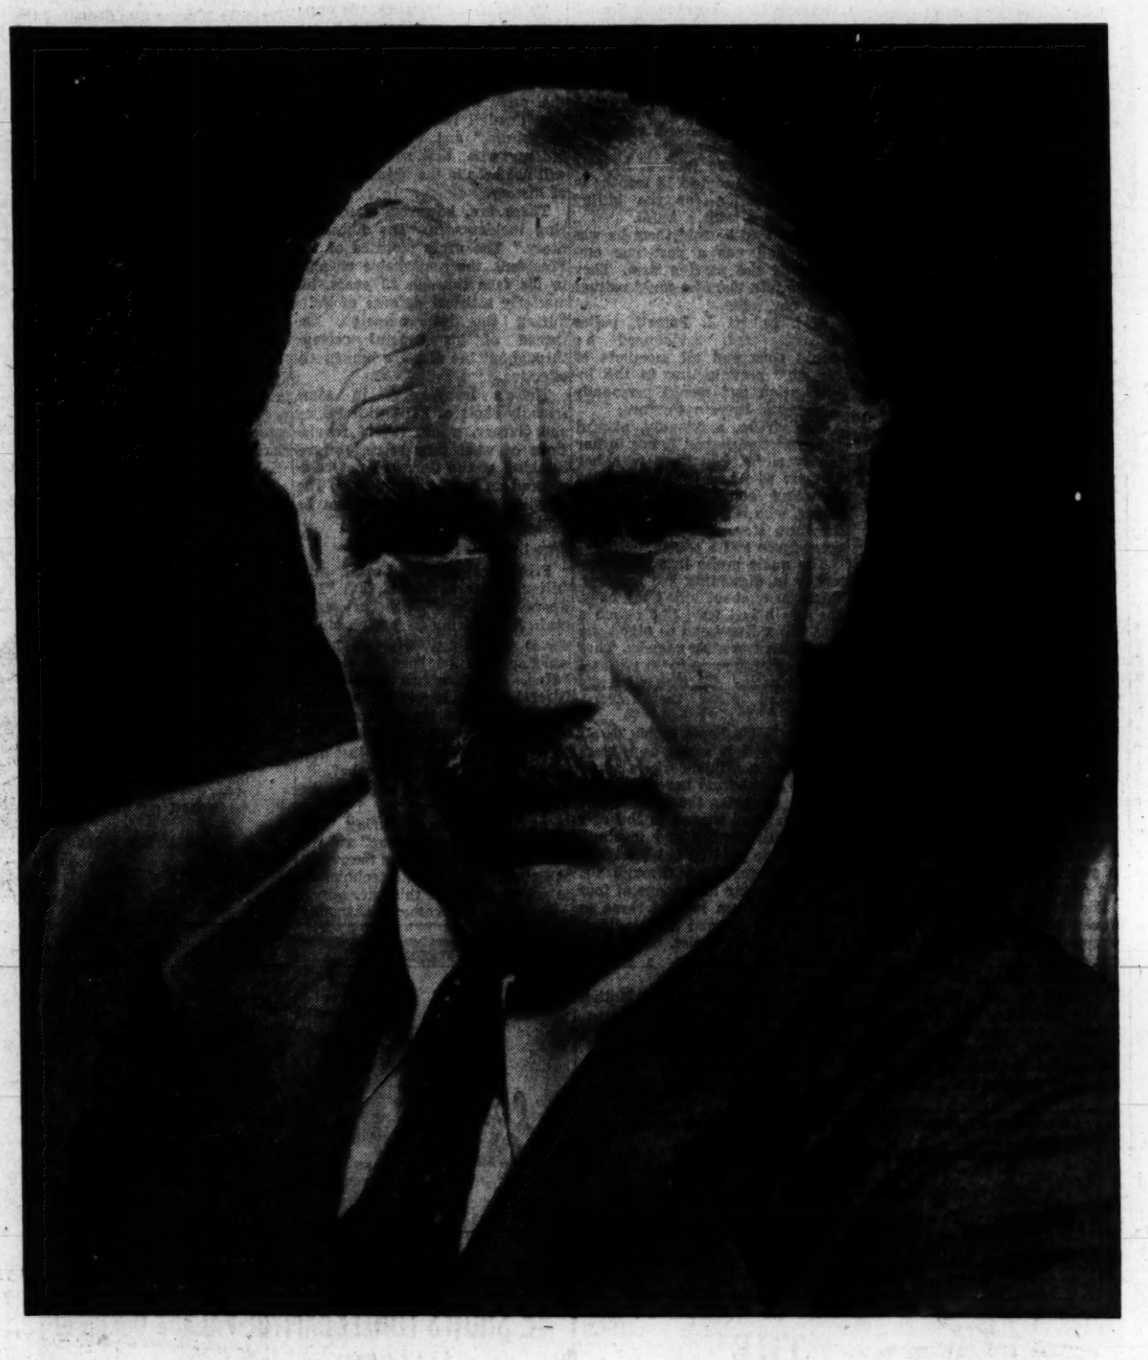
General Campaign Chairman, Washington Metropolitan Area
1948 American Red Cross Campaign



We Americans hold a unique position in the world today. We have in our hands more real power for mercy, more personal responsibility for human welfare, than has ever been carried by so large a group of civilians.

Under its Congressional Charter, The American Red Cross has certain must duties, plus a well-rounded program developed in answer to pressing community needs. The Red Cross must be ready to rush aid to any place in the country in time of disaster. The Red Cross must provide continuing aid and service to the veterans of all our wars—and to the men and women of the armed forces. The annual campaign is now the only way in which funds are raised for these operations.

The Red Cross depends upon your generosity in this appeal for funds. You're not giving just dollars. You're giving mercy, health and instant aid when disaster strikes . . . life to the sick and injured . . . safer, better living conditions in your home community . . . cheer and comfort for the hospitalized in both federal and civilian hospitals. You're extending friendship and aid across the seas to the children and adults of other nations.

Senate Beats Down Changes in Tax Bill

Nomination Of Behling Withdrawn

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday withdrew the nomination of Burton H. Behling to be a member of the Federal Power Commission, just 30 minutes before the Senate Commerce Committee was scheduled to begin considering his confirmation.

The White House did not explain the sudden withdrawal. However, George Welch, Mayor of Grand Rapids, Mich., and president of the United States Conference of Mayors, called on the President at 11 a. m. The Conference of Mayors last month adopted a resolution opposing legislative change in the Natural Gas Act of 1938.

The withdrawal of Behling's nomination was sent to the Senate committee shortly after Welch left the White House.

Now a special assistant to the Power Commission, Behling was nominated to be a member near the end of the previous session of Congress, which adjourned without confirmation by the Senate. His name was sent up again by Mr. Truman last January 9.

At hearings on confirmation of his nomination last July 19, Behling testified to his belief that the rate-making base for natural gas should be changed from its present emphasis on investment to a "field," "market" or "commodity" value basis. Two members of the commission contended this change would increase costs to the consumer by as much as 75 million dollars a year. The other two members of the short-handed commission submitted an amendment to the 1938 act which would effect such a change in the rate-making base.

This led to the belief in many quarters here that Behling's appointment would break the 2-to-2 tie in the commission in favor of a rate-making change.

As a special investigator for the commission, Behling conducted its recent exhaustive investigation of the natural gas situation. His report on the investigation was indorsed by two commissioners, whereas the other two, who oppose change, wrote a dissenting report.

Vote Due Monday On Measure Aimed At 4.8 Billion Cut

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Senate Republican majority yesterday mowed down all major changes in its 4.8 billion dollar tax reduction bill but postponed a final vote until 5 p. m. Monday.

Plans for passage last night were abandoned when continuing debate threatened a late night session.

Before recessing for the weekend the Senate rjectd 58 to 26 a variation of President Truman's proposal for restoration of a modified excess profits tax.

Defeat of Veto in Doubt

Other Democratic - sponsored changes were similarly sidetracked. Initial Senate passage of the bill by a large majority was taken for granted but whether a presidential veto could be overridden remained in doubt.

Senator Walter George (D., Ga.) told the Senate, however, that he felt "morally committed" to support the bill "even if war comes tomorrow and we have to vote to increase taxes again."

George took the position that increased personal exemptions and split income privileges for married couples should be written into law now to remove "basic inequities."

If "war conditions" later made a sharp tax increase necessary, he said it would be better to build on the revised tax base.

Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) supported the cut for the same stated reason and said that "if future developments require additional expenditures for national defense or otherwise, I will then support increased taxes."

Campaign Motives Charged

Two other Democrats, Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) and Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Wyo.), charged Republicans had "election year" motives in driving through the bill.

It was O'Mahoney who offered the excess profits tax amendment, designed to raise four billion dollars more in Federal revenue. After a $50,000 exemption for small business, O'Mahoney's amendment would have taxed corporation income running in excess of 135 per cent of 1935-1939 base profits from 50 to 100 per cent.

Quoting National City Bank statistics, O'Mahoney charged corporation profits, particularly in steel, food and building material industries, are breaking all records, and "digging the ditch into which the capitalistic system may fall." He said the tax would have a deflationary effect on prices.

Millikin replied that business income generally already cuts heavily into profits and "you shouldn't kill the hen that lays the eggs." He said there are some "hogs" making unjustified profits, but business generally shouldn't be penalized for the practices of a few.

Defeated along with O'Mahoney's excess profits tax rider was an amendment by Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) for an additional credit of $10,000 for relief of small business. Later a similar amendment by Senator J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.), providing a special $15,000 credit, was defeated, 46 to 21.

Transport Tax Repeal Loses

These other amendments were defeated:

1. By Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) to repeal the 15 per cent transportation tax. Rejected, 67 to 13.

2. By Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.), making retroactive to 1942 the bill's "splitting" principle on estate taxes.

On motion of Millikin, however, the Senate made this principle retroactive to January 1, 1948 instead of when the bill becomes law.

Under the bill, the 12.6 to 5 per cent cut in personal income taxes, the $100 increase in individual exemptions and the "split income" privilege for married couples also would be retroactive to January 1.

Just before the recess, Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.), who opposed the GOP's last tax reduction measure, announced he will vote for this one and obtained Senate permission to speak two hours Monday. Morse said public sentiment has crystallized for tax reduction since last year. He will propose seven modifications.

Compromise Reached On Rail Financing Bill

By The Associated Press

Agreement was reached yesterday by a Senate-House Committee on a compromise version of a bill to permit railroads to reorganize without going into the courts.

Both the House and the Senate must still ratify the agreement to send the bill to the White House.

The compromise would permit railroads not in bankruptcy but which have temporary difficulty in (1) meeting maturing obligations or (2) in paying either principal or interest on outstanding debt to alter or modify their bond obligations.

Any such modification would have to have the approval of 75 per cent of the holders of the bonds and the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission. But court proceedings would not be required.

Phone Workers to Seek 30 Cents an Hour More

Jacksonville, Fla., March 19 (AP). The American Union of Telephone Workesr (CIO) today unanimously adopted a resolution demanding a 30 cents and our wage boost.

Staley H. Ruttenberg, CIO associate dircetor of research asserted that profits in industry generally were at an all-time high and that industry could increase wages 20 per cent without increasing greater than that of 1929.

Falls Church Man Held On Girl's Assault Charge

Eugene Shafer, 38, of 102 W. Fairfax st., Falls Church, was released in $2000 bond yesterday after a 10-year-old town girl charged he assaulted her Thursday afternoon.

Shafer was arrested by Falls Church police that evening after the girl's mother swore out a warrant against him in Fairfax. Town police quoted the mother as saying Shafer molested the girl in the dark hallway of his home after she had brought him a soft drink. They said the girl was not injured.

Shafer, a carpenter by trade, faces a charge of assault in a hearing to be held in Fairfax Trial Justice Court next Friday.

A second assault warrant againt him sworn out by his wife, Mrs. Evelyn J. Shafer, at the same time Thursday was dropped by her yesterday afternoon.

Assaulted Girl Still 'Critical'

then was confronted by the victim's mother. The mother had asked to watch police interrogation of Holmes. During the questioning he broke down and confessed to the attack, according to Lieut. Richard McCarty, head of the Police Sex Squad.

When asked why he had done it, he replied, "I don't know, I just went wild," McCarty reported.

Holmes said he had lost his way in the neighborhood after helping on a moving van. He asked the girl for directions. When she pointed the way, he grabbed her and attempted to attack her, he told police.

About 11 a. m. he was led, handcuffed before Municipal Court Judge Ellen K. Raedy and charged by Assistant United States Attorney Stafford Grady with rape. Grady recommended that no bond be granted.

Judge Raedy ordered Holmes held without bond for a hearing April 21.

Later in the day, United States Attorney George Morris Fay, moving for speedy action on the charge, assigned Assistant United States Attorney John Conliff to study the evidence and prepare the case "with an effort to prosecute it as expeditiously as possible."

Fay declared, "it is very probable that the case will be presented to the grand jury next week even though the girl will not be able to testify."

The girl, a third-grade student in the Kingsman School, was found about 7:30 p. m. by a neighbor, William Windor of 2603 Morris pl. ne., in a ravine outside the Arboretum fence only a few hundred yards from her home. She was unconscious and clothed only in her shoes and socks.

Twenty-five detectives were assigned to the case and the entire police force was alerted. Two of the 25, Precinct Detective H. C. Young and Detective Sergt. R. E. Talbot, searching the area with flashlights, spotted a letter about 50 yards from where the victim was found.

The letter was from the Health Department and requested Holmes to appear for a venereal disease checkup.

Detective Sergt. J. B. Layton was dispatched to the address shown on the envelope, but seeing that it was a business establishment, did not enter. Meanwhile, however, Pvt. Lionel Couture of the Accident Investigation Unit, called the Detective Bureau to report that a man answering the description of a person seen in the vicinity of the crime had been treated in the Casualty Hospital emergency room about 7 p. m. after walking into a taxi at West Virginia and Florida aves. ne. He reported Holmes name and address.

Detective Young, Layton and McCarty then returned to the address climbed a rear fire escape and broke into Holmes' room. They found him lying in bed, fully clothed. He denied the crime, but when shown the letter and a brown, slouch hat later found near the scene, he confessed, according to Lieutenant McCarty.

During the confession, he told police he had served 18 months in North Carolina for the killing of a woman with a knife.

Police said he told them he was single and was a part-time employe of the moving firm. They said he told them he could neither read nor write.

Maj. Robert J. Barrett, police superintendent, announced he would commend all members of his staff participating in the investigation and would personally meet with Private Couture.

The victim, a friendly, playful girl, was the central figure in her family circle. She lived with her mother, who had remarried after divorcing her father; her stepfather, who is a clerk in a District furniture store; a grandmother, a great-uncle and a cousin.

The uncle broke into tears yesterday in discussing the incident. "They near about killed my baby. She's in a bad way. She's such a cute thing. She loves to play—she plays with two girls near-by. They play hop-scotch, skip rope and color in books. She makes friends easily—and gives them everything."

"She's got a heart as big as all outdoors and is smart as a steel trap. She got this desk (a small roll-top desk) from her grandma."

Fond of pets, the girl had a dog, a cat and shared in the care of a family canary and lovebird.

The uncle pointed out her other playthings scattered through the two-story frame house, one of four simple dwellings located three or four blocks beyond the built-up section of the District.

Near her desk was a framed verse, reading:

"A Wish of Happiness for Mother
"If love can read your future,
"It's very, very clear
"That through your days
"You'll always have
"Just sunshine, mother dear."

One on the Aisle—
Roosevelt Film Has Big Faults

By Richard L. Coe

"THE ROOSEVELT STORY," which has opened the new Dupont Theater, is a frankly partisan, nonobjective eulogy of the late President.

Watching this picture is like reliving parts of one's own life; so much of his life was a part of the lives of us all. Too, his greatness lay in his understanding heart and this gives his pictorial life a unique emotional appeal.

I yield to no one in my admiration for FDR. He was a trustee of the first school I went to and I never pass the White House without missing his stirring personality.

However, it seems to me that "The Roosevelt Story" has an irritating, patronizing quality that is just as tasteless in its extreme as the attacks that are made upon him. One can resent this approach as much as the devastating backbiting.

The newsreel clippings are threaded together with the device of a taxi driver who comments on the historic span of the Roosevelt life. This glaringly artful device—using the presumably common man as a sort of Greek chorus—has the same patronizing effect on this observer as did the same character in the early propaganda radio plays of Norman Corwin and Arch Oboler.

For the comment in "The Roosevelt Story" is largely extraneous. I strongly suspect one would get more of a wallop out of these moving reminders of a great man had the commentary of the taxi driver been sacrificed in favor of strictly factual reporting.

The result is that "The Roosevelt Story" is a picture that will undoubtedly be admired by those who already are inspired by its great subject, but it will only anger to further pitiful fury those who now revile him.

Ironic Clippings, Too

To paint, for instance, the opposition as black as does "The Roosevelt Story" is by no means honest reporting, and only honest reporting can give us a true picture of the past. I can well understand why Cordell Hull called this film "dynamite," and I also think, as did my wife, that such a picture will not help in the objective study of history.

There are, however, many stirring incidents in "The Roosevelt Story." The early pictures of the President, the remarkable changes in his face through 30 years, his masterly satirical defense of Falla during the '44 campaign, the thread of his funeral cortege throughout the film are immensely effective.

There's irony, too, in some friendly shots of FDR with Farley and Garner, whose recent revelations of what they secretly were thinking at the time are not commented on by the taxi driver. The complex course of history can be simplified only so far.

Fine Swedish Short

Producers Martin Levine and Oliver Unger have said that "The Roosevelt Story" was primarily made for showing in foreign lands, where the late President's popularity has to be seen to be believed. The film has been translated into 14 languages and arrangements for its showings are on a global scale. Foreigners will be moved by this film, but just how accurate will their picture be?

The Dupont's short subjects are both new to this country. The first is an Italian film picturing "The Drama of the Son of Man" via the frescoes of Giotto in the Scrovegni at Pauda. It will take technicians to get much out of this one.

From Sweden comes a charming blend of fact and fancy, "Wind From the West," a fine descriptive visit with the Lapplanders and a thoroughly enjoyable short.

"THE ROOSEVELT STORY." United Artists release produced by Martin Levine and Oliver A. Unger in association with Harry Brandt. Editorial Consultant, Elliott Roosevelt. Script by Lawrence M. Klee. Music by Earl Robinson. Lyrics by Lewis Allan. Choral direction by Robert Shaw. Film compiled by Walter Klee. Voices by Kenneth Lynch, Cameda Lee, Ed Begley, Kelly Flint and Gene Blakely.

Nats Lose, 8-6, as Braves Pound Rookie Davis in 3d

The Washington Post Sports
14 Saturday, March 20, 1948

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

BRADENTON, FLA., MARCH 19.—Billy Southworth, manager of the Braves, cannot tell you at this moment which club will win the pennant in his league, but he can safely say that at 1:12 p. m. next Thursday the man taking batting practice at Bradenton will be Jeff Heath; and he can add that at that precise minute, Righthander Bill Voiselle will be taking two laps around the park.

POVICH

Southworth has the Braves' training routine systematized like nothing ever was in big league baseball. If it's a three-man bunting game on the sidelines at 11:02 p. m., the three guys know a week in advance who they team up with in the session, and when. Southworth himself rises every morning at 7 o'clock. He has his own day's work plotted to the minute. The Braves are already leading the league in punctuality.

In fact, Southworth is such a busy guy that he has even anticipated his press conferences, and with a view to eliminating any foolish and time-consuming questions, he drew up an official bulletin last month stating his views on everything he expected to be asked. "Southworth Thinks Cards Team to Beat," is the caption of his mimeographed handout to the press, with a complete run-down of the National League teams.

THE BRAVES have given no ground, incidentally, in their battle with the Red Sox, for the patronage of Boston fans. They think they can outdraw the Red Sox despite Ted Williams and Joe McCarthy and the hefty purchases of Owner Tom Yawkey. They came within 100,000 of the Red Sox attendance last season and they have a lot to offer for 1948, they think.

Mr. Lou Perini, one of the three contractors who own the team and who is president of it, peeled off $100,000 to buy First Baseman Earl Torgeson from Seattle last year, and when the club didn't have quite the hustle that he liked, he bought Eddie Stanky from the Dodgers a couple of weeks ago, for a couple of ball players and $60,000. Money is one of the things Perini dispenses most easily.

Is there anything else the Braves' fans would like? Perini asks the question in paid advertisements, and examines every suggestion he gets through the mails. Fix up the seats, sure. His own contracting firm did the job quickly last season. Get a guy who can knock home runs? Okay, he paid the Browns $40,000 more than the $10,000 waiver price to get Jeff Heath who belted 27 homers last season.

IN THE MIDDLE of last season, Perini received complaints from the box-holders in the front rows at Braves Field. Their seats were too low. The turtle-back infield hid the outfielders from the fans' view, from the waist down. Could he raise their seats a bit. Perini couldn't raise the front row seats at all, because that would block the view from the other seats, but he did have his own remedy.

While the Braves were out of town on a Western trip, Perini got out his firm's laborers. He couldn't raise the seats, but he could lower the field. He had steamshovels and excavators working and he dug 18 inches off the top of the field, dropping the diamond down. To resod it he transported a zillion carloads of dirt from a meadow 40 miles away, which he had cultivated for that purpose.

He didn't have any trouble signing Heath, incidentally. He sent the fellow a plane ticket to Seattle, asked him to come to Boston for a talk, and when Heath arrived, he asked, "How much money do you want?" When Heath named the figure, Perini said "Okay." His only injunction was that if Heath didn't hustle he'd be kicked off the club pronto.

PERINI IS making it nice and easy for the Boston fans to watch the Braves play. He's arranged something like a conducted tour for his customers that he calls the Braves' Blue Plate Special. For the club's night games they can have a full course dinner at the Somerset Hotel, get free transportation to and from the park, and a reserved grandstand seat for the bargain rates of $4.50 for the whole package.

Right now he's dickering with the New Haven Railroad for a spur track that will bring the fans to his park on a Braves Field siding. That will be nice. And for his night games he has his foul line poles illuminated by Neon lights—something he saw down in a West Virginia bush league town and liked.

The Braves drew 1,300,000 customers last season, a figure that could have netted the club a hefty profit but Perini didn't make a nickel out of the season's operation—he spent it all for ballplayers, minor league affiliates and fan comfort. The Braves are getting awfully popular in Boston. Love those fans.

Caps Play Knicks; Rest Is Strictly Hypothetical

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

If Cyrus Ching, the Federal labor conciliator, thinks he has problems settling union disputes he should take a look-in on the Basketball Association of America pennant race.

Mr. Ching would immediately "disaffiliate," to borrow a word from that eminent disaffiliationist, John L. Lewis.

Caps Can Help Warriors

The one game which could unmuddle the muddle slightly will be played at Uline Arena tonight with the Caps facing the New York Knickerbockers.

If the Caps, whose current four-game winning streak created a situation fraught with "ifs, buts and howevers," whip the Knicks it's all over in the Eastern Division. Philadelphia, which completed its slate Thursday, automatically wins the flag. The Warriors now are leading the Kincks by a mere half game.

Gliding along on the assumption that the Caps beat New York and wrap up the crown for the Warriors, here's what happens in the Caps' neck of the woods—the Western Division:

Another 'If' Pops Up

Washington, considered out of the race a week ago, clinches at least a tie for third place with Baltimore. It's possible that the Caps can breeze in all alone.

For that to happen, however, Providence must whip Baltimore tonight, but that comes under the head of day-dreaming.

Developing the original hypothesis, Washington and Baltimore tie for third palce with 28 victories and 20 losses each. That necessitates a play off for third place.

On The Other Hand

Twenty four hours later, however, the entire picture can change with Washington, Baltimore and either Chicago or St. Louis for second place.

If Chicago, current Western leader, splits its two-game weekend brush with St. Louis, the Stags win the crown leaving St. Louis, Washington and Baltimore tied. If St. Louis clips Chicago tonight and Sunday it wins the title and the Stage wind up tied with the Caps and Bullets.

What happens next depends on League President Maurice Podoloff. He'll have to do something quick, however, because the $50,000 playoff scramble is scheduled to start next Tuesday.

Knicks Have Edge

The Caps are content to leave the muddle in the lap of Podoloc. They're just concentrating on beating the Knicks tonight.

New York holds a 3-2 edge over the season. The Caps undoubtedly will call on the starting combine which has enabled them to win their last four in a row to open against New York. That finds Dick O'Keefe, Irv Torgoff, Bones McKinney, Bob Feerick and Freddie Scolari in the spotlight.

Carl Braun and Bud Palmer, two of the loop's top scorers, carry the Knick burden with Sid Tannenbaum, Tommy Byrne, Carl von Breda Koff and Dick Holub rounding out the cast.

The Zisons tallied three goals in each of the three periods, while the Lions could only get a single score in the second session and another pair in the finale.

Loeffler, Golf Pro, Dies at 53

Pittsburgh, March 19 (U.P.).—Emil (Dutch) Loeffler, who was associated with the famous Oakmont Country Club for more than 45 years, died today. He was 53.

At the age of 8, he was a caddy for the first golf game at the club. Loeffler was regarded as one of the Nation's outstanding authorities on golf course construction. He was consulted in the building of many courses throughout the country.

He retired last year and was succeeded by Washington's Lew Worsham, whom he recommended for the job.

Savold Kayoes Italian in First

New York, March 19 (AP).—Lee Savold, 32-year-old ring campaigner, scored a sensational first-round knockout in 54 seconds of the first round tonight over Gino Buonvino, the Italian champion.

It was Buonvino's first defeat after 11 consecutive victories in Amercia.

The fight starteed briskly with both heavyweights trading punches freely. Savold got over several fast hard left jabs and then sank the Italian with a hard right.

At first Buonvino lay face down and then got almost to his knees as if he would come up before the count. But by the time Referee Ruby Goldsteein reached eight he gave up and fell flat on his face.

Buonvina had entered the right a 2 to 1 favorite.

Shock Proves Fatal

Meningitis Blamed in Ring Death of 11-Year-Old Boy

New York, March 19 (U.P.).—Genaro Iacona, 11, who died last night after the second round of a public school boxing match, was suffering from meningitis when he entered the ring, an autopsy showed today.

The boy, who hoped for a career as a prizefighter and fought against his father's wishes, slumped to the floor after two rounds of trading blows with Gilbert Azebedo, 12. He died within a few minutes.

Dr. Thomas Gonzales said Genaro was suffering from "slight meningitis" and that he had enlarged lymph glands and very tender veins which made him highly susceptible to shock.

The doctor was the condition was difficult to detect.

The boys were fighting in street clothes and using pillow-sized 16-ounce gloves in a gymnasium with a ring marked off by benches.

Witnesses said the boy, Christopher Iacona, had taken about 20 to 25 blows to the body during the two, two-minute rounds of the bout held in the gymnasium of Brooklyn Public School No. 29.

At the end of the last round, he walked to his corner, then paled abruptly, and collapsed into the arms of a 13-year-old student referee, Sol Pennino.

He was pronounced dead on arrival at a hospital.

Griffs Outhit Boston But Fail to Catch Up

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Bradenton, Fla., March 19.—The Nats made it five out of seven—defeats, that is—in the Grapefruit League today with an unbrilliant 8-6 performance against the Boston Braves.

The Braves got their eight runs quickly against the first of Washington's three Class D league pitchers—Southpaw Earl Davis.

The Nats hit the ball hard, but unjudiciously. They got 13 hits to the Braves' nine, but it was futile. A triple with the bases full by Clint Conatser, Braves' right fielder, in the third inning was the decisive blow. The Braves came up with five runs in that inning.

Manager Billy Southworth of the Braves, however, was compelled to call in a veteran pitcher, Clyde Shoun, to preserve his lead in the ninth inning. Rookie Al Lyons, one-time Yankee, filled the bases with one out on a single by Jim Clark, a waln to Eddie Lyons and a hit batter.

Mark Christman popped up in this crisis, but Lyons walked Leon Culberson to force one run home, and Shoun came in to dispose of Pinch-Hitter Al Evans on a ground ball.

Young Davis who virtually pitched himself into Charlotte with his performance today, was followed by two more Class D leaguers, Bill Dozier and Joe Jones, and they did all right. They held the Braves scoreless after the third inning, allowing only two hits.

Score Five In Third

The Braves commenced to win the ball game in the opening inning when they got two runs on one hit. Danny Litwhiler drove them home with a double to center after Davis gave up two walks. Bob Sturgeon tripled for another run in the second, but in the third the Braves got very tough and scored five runs.

Conatser's triple to deep left with the bases full drove in the first three and a two-bagger to right by Rookie Alvin Dark figured in the last two.

Mickey Vernon's double and Sherry Robertson's single figured in a run for the Nats in the second inning, and in the fourth they got two more when McBride tripled to right, and Robertson and Yost singled in succession.

Nats Score 2 in Sixth

Bill Pendergrast, a venerable rookie left-hander, was succeeded by Lyons in the fifth and the latter gave up two runs in the sixth when Vernon singled, Culberson doubled and Drake singled in succession.

That uprising cut the Braves' lead to 8-5, but the Nats never did get another run until Lyons forced one in, in the ninth, and they pulled up two runs short, with their record sagging to five defeats in seven training games to date.

SHERRY ROBERTSON raised his spring batting average to an even .500 with two hits in two times up today. . . . In the Nats' seven games to date, he has whacked 11 hits in 22 appearances. . . . Leon Culberson, from the Red Sox, who was supposed to play center field, reported fat and could lose the job to rookie Larry Drake, who has been doing everything except right in addition to clouting the ball. . . . Jeff Heath is out of the Braves' line-up temporarily with a wrenched back. He took a fall in the outfield, victim of his new determination to "hustle." . . . The Nats who have been encountering their alumni all over Florida were visited today by Earl Whitehill, now a sporting goods salesman. . . . The Nats got a foull deal on hotel arrangements when they moved into Bradenton last night, stopping at two hostelries here with the overflow forced into Sarasota, 12 miles away. . . . Rookie Jim Clark's hit in today's game raised his batting average over his fielding average, it is suspected in view of the lad's numerous errors thius far. . . . The Nats expect better pitching tomorrow with Wynn, Scarborough and Haefner due to work against the Braves.

Practice Tomorrow

Maryland Sport Club unlimited class baseball team will hold practice tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Shary Oak. Candidates for the team should call Carl Travers at Hillside 7096.

Gumpert's Homer Wins For Yanks

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 19 (AP).—Pitcher Randy Gumpert blazed a three-run homer in the ninth today and the New York Yankees defeated the Boston Red Sox, 6-3. It was the ninth training camp triumph in 11 games for the world champions.

New York trailed, 3 to 1, at the start of the final half inning but scored five times for the verdict. The rally was opened by Rookie Outfielder Ed Stewart's triple. The outburst came at the expense of Pitcher Denny Galehouse.

Frank Hiller pitched five scoreless innings for the Yanks.

Both clubs had seven-run innings—the Cards' coming in the eighth and the Phillies' in the last of the ninth.

Jim Hern handcuffed the Phillies without a run during the five innings he worked. The veteran Dutch Leonard was the losing pitcher.

Reds Drop Tigers

Lakeland, Fla., March 19 (AP).—Bunching five hits for four runs off Freddie Hutchinson in the opening inning, the Cincinnati Reds slapped the Detroit Tigers 5 to 2 here today.

The win gave the National Leaguers a .500 average in spring exhibition games as they have won five and lost five. Bucky Walters and John Hetski held the Detroiters to seven hits, one less than the Reds got off Hutchinson and Hal White.

It was Detroit's seventh loss in 11 games.

Haight Goes Point-to-Pointing at Warrenton Today

Writer Bit Confused About Starting Point

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

"Give us the lowdown on point-to-point racing," postal cards a reader.

The request reminds me of a communication received some years ago which read, "We like your notes columns because they give us the lowdown. Around our office you are known as Lowdown Haight."

Haight

Enough to make a man get high as a kite, if you know what I mean.

But getting back to point-to-point racing, the Warrenton Hunt will stage its ever-so-many annual program today. Last week, Redland Hunt held the horsey Stage. There are many others coming up

Every year I try to explain the pitch on point-to-pointing, but the question invaribly pops up again.

Anyway, point-to-point racing is a by-product of fox hunting—the sport in which a fox is chased, not because anyone likes baked fox or anyone needs a new neckpiece. It's all in good fun, although at times there are injuries, not all confined to the fox.

These hunts are formal affairs. They are carried on with dignity and according to a set of stern rules. Of course the foxes and the hounds are uninformed on proper tactics and sometimes upset the best of man-made plans but that's another story.

Mr. Big of fox hunting is the master of fox hounds. His authority is above reproach.

No ordinary hunter can ride in front of the master. Sometimes the master is not on the fastest horse. Many a hunter knows he could urge his mount and go places fatser than his majesty. However, if he puts his theory into practice—well, he may become a former member.

Hence, while the master sets the pace—thanks to rules and regulations—many arguments develop in the field about the speed of various horses.

When the hunting season ends, these arguments are settled by staging a day of racing with the keynote on competition.

Point-to-point means exactly what the name implies. For instance, horses and riders leave one point, go to another, pick up tokens to prove it and return to the starting point. In many races no particular course is designated. The rider goes any direction he chooses, the objective, of course, is getting from one point to another pointand back to the original point—and be first.

The racing day is an outing day for all the landowners, populace and friends in the particular hunting country.

Warrenton's meeting today starts at 11 a. m. and lists three races.

The main event comes first and is open to members of the Warrenton Hunt and landowners; for horses by their owner at least six times this season and to be ridden by owner or a member of his immediate family. It's five miles over rugged country.

The second event is a pair race for teams of two-lady and gentleman—at about six miles. Pairs will be drawn by lot and if there is an odd number, some gentleman may have to become a lady for the race, or vice versa—to which all I can say is lovely, lovely.

No Point in Going Along, Says His Wife

The third race is for juniors, under 17—meaning riders and not horses, of course.

As is traditional, the starting point and the course is not made known until the evening before the races.

I'm going down to see the fun, so I phoned for instructions.

The kind lady who answered the phone said, "The starting point is on Mr. W. H. Emory's Hill on Lee's Ridge. Take the by-pass around Warrenton to Culpepper street, turn right into Fauquier Springs Road and, just before reaching the Warrenton county school, turn left."

If I don't get lost going from point to point trying to find the starting point, I'll be there.

However, the married woman I live with won't. I asked her if she wanted to go and she replied, "There's no point in it."

All-Star Game Closes Scholastic Season

Proceeds Go To Boys Club Work Fund

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Washington's scholastic basketball season ends today at Uline Arena where the All-Highs and All-Preps play their second annual game for the benefit of the Boys Club of Washington work fund.

John R. Steelman, assistant to President Truman, will officially start the game at 2:30 p. m. by tossing out the first ball. A preliminary between the Georgetown Branch 105-pound team, and the Boys Club League All-Stars begins at 1:15.

The Big Brothers Club, sponsor, reports advaance ticket sales have already insured a larger crowd than the 1200 which saw the All-Highs win a 29-28 thriller last year.

Four All-Stars who played last year, make a return appearance. They are Wayne Brizendine of Western, Jack George and Billy Martins of St. John's and Tommy Dean of Sidwell Friends. All but Brizendine will play for the Preps.

Brizendine, 17, is a high school star in Indiana before he moved to Washington two years ago, will captain the Highs and start at forward. He is considered one of the finest collegiate prospects in the Washington schools.

Others who will start for the Highs are Jack Whitcomb of Woodrow Wilson at forward and Jimmy Pantos and Hal Sponsler of the interhigh championship Central team at guards. At center will be Buddy Wickers of Tech, John Brown of Eastern or Wally Warner, the interhigh leading scorer from Anacostia.

The Prep starters probably will be Capt. Jack George, probably Washington's most versatile schoolboy athlete, and Jack Spicer of Gonzaga at forwards, Tom Fannon of St. John's at center, and Clem Conlin of Gonzaga and Billy Martins at the guards.

G. W., Catholic U. Challenge Terps' For Rifle Title

Annapolis, Md., March 18 (AP).—Some 50 gun toting collegians will fire away at the bull's eye here Saturday in one section of the National Intercollegiate Rifle Championships.

Twelve institutions are playing host for the title shoot in various parts of the country. Each competition will produce a regional king, and the national champion will be determined when scores are accumulated in Washington.

Maryland and Navy are rated the best in the Academy mitch. The Terrapins, long undefeated until Army upset them last week, won the Nation-wide crown a year ago.

Entries also have been received from Penn, Rutgers, N. Y. U., Catholic U., V.M.I. and George Washington.

Eagles Fight Lock Haven

American University's boxers, still looking for their first victory, have hopes of getting it here tonight when they entertain Lock Haven, Pa., State Teachers.

The Eagles enter the match with a 1-0 advantage with Lock Haven forfeiting in the 125-pound class. A point was the margin of defeat when the Eagles lost, 4½-3½, to Lock Haven in their previous meeting this season.

In its last match, American was trimmed by Georgetown, 6½-1½, but forfeited bouts in the heavy and light-heavyweight classes. Bob Matos, 165, scored the only victory with a TKO over Johnny Murphy and Bill Erickson, 130-pounder, drew with Tom Doherty.

Tonight's lineup (American U. boxers first): 125—Lock Haven will forfeit; 130—Bill Erickson vs. Ralph Smith; 135—Henry Schaffer vs. Ralph Paul; 145—Mary Schiff vs. George Butchko; 155—Tom Ford vs. Jim Smithover; 165—Bob Matos vs. Tom Mattox; 175—John Whelan vs. Jim Smith; heavyweight—Jim Dickerson vs. Leo Rafferty.

Va. Highs Plan Lower Age Limit

Charlottesville, Va., March 19.—The legislative council of the Virginia High School League meets next Saturday to consider lowering the athletic eligibility age from 20 years and 6 months to 19 and 6.

Among other recommendations which will be up for consideration are increasing from three to four the number of subjects an athlete must pass in order to maintain eligibility; allowing football practice to start on August 25; and tightening membership in the Group I league to schools of 1000 or more enrollment. Group I now includes schools of 600 students and more.

Henry, Royer Kept As VPI Coaches

Blacksburg, Va., March 19 (AP).—Head Coach Bob McNeish today named Mel Henry and Herb Royer to the Virginia Tech varsity football coaching staff as backfield and end coaches, respectively.

Both filled similar posts under McNeish's predecessor, Jimmy Kitts.

Greensboro Open Led By Milward

Greensboro, N. C., March 19 (AP). Jim Milward, 34-year-old Madison, Wis., professional who plays out of the resort town of Northernaire, scored a three-under-par 32-35—67 today to lead the first round of the $10,000 Greensboro open golf tournament.

Trailing him by a stroke were two North Carolina pros, Stewart (Skip) Alexander of Mid-Pines and Cloyton Heafner of Charlotte, whose 68's were a stroke ahead of three other players.

Three players posted 69's and seven others came in with par 70 over the 6720-yard Sedgefield Country Club course to set the stage for some wholesale jockeying of positions in tomorrow's 18 holes. Thirty-six holes on Sunday will wind up the shooting.

Jimmy Demaret, Ojai, Calif., last year's No. 1 money winner and four times second this year, closed with a 25-foot eagle put on the last hole for a 69 to tie George Fazio, Los Angeles, and Marty Furgol, Brooklyn, N. Y., for fourth place.

National Open Champion Lew Worsham, of Washington, and Otto Greiner, of Baltimore, led the Washington area players with first round totals of 70. Wynsel K. Spencer, of Hampton, Va., followed with a 74 and Ralph Bogart, of Takoma Park, and Chandler Harper, of Portsmouth, Va., were tied at 75.

Tall Kentucky Picked to Win NCAA Title From Holy Cross

New York, March 19 (AP).—If Holy Cross hopes to retain its NCAA basketball title it must prove tomorrow night that a good little team can beat towering Kentucky.

The experts figure it can't. They don't agree on the final point margin but almost to a man they pick the Blue Grass Wildcats.

The Holy Cross-Kentucky contest is the final game of the Eastern NCAA playoff. The winner wil play the Western NCAA champion from Kansas City in a National title game here Tuesday.

Both the Crusaders and the Wildcats performed brilliantly last night. Kentucky toyed with Columbia, finaly winning 76 to 53. The margin probably could have been at least 20 points greater, Holy Cross outclassed Michigan, 63 to 45, while obviously operating at half speed much of the way.

Holy Cross, as nifty a passing and shooting outfit as there is, appears to have all the abilities of Kentucky. But not the height.

Kentucky has so many big boys that the second-string bench warmers average a fraction of an inch taller than the starting five.

Alex Groza at 6-7 and Wallace (Wah Wah) Jones at 6-4 are the biggest the Wildcats have to offer. Jones contributed 21 points against Columbia, Groza 17.

Of course, Holy Cross doesn't field a squad of midgets. In average height the starting five runs within a half inch of the Wildcats. But man to man it's Kentucky with one exception.

The little fellow is Ralph Beard, All America guard. At 5-10½ he will be the shortest player on the floor. But he's the driving power that makes the Wildcats click.

Aintree's Big Race Set Today

The favorite is Lord Bicester's Silver Fame at 10 to 1 odds, carrying 160 pounds.

Thousands of recent bets on Prince Regent brought the odds on this oldest and most beloved of jumpers down to 14 to 1. Prince Regent, at 13 years, carries the top weight of 170 pounds.

Two scratches reduced the field to 44. Last year 57 horses started and 23 finished. Post time is 9:15 a. m. Eastern standard time.

Caddie II, the only American entry, is owned bq Paul Mellon of Pittsburgh. He is quoted at 50 to 1. "The American," as the horse is known here, will carry 161 pounds. Last year's winner, Caughoo, is rated at 155 pounds and the odds are 25 to 1.

The two scratches today were Brighter Sandy, an outsider that pulled up lame after a morning gallop, and Keep Faith, one of the two entries from the stable of the flour miller, James V. Rank. His other horse is the mighty Prince Regent.

Army-Navy Vets Bowl Tonight

Julie Singer's Navy Vets will oppose Fred Murphy's Army Vets in a benefit bowling match 7:30 tonight at the Bethesda Bowling Center. All proceeds of the match will go to the Bowlers' Victory Legion.

Singer's squad includes Paul Perkins, Lindsay Stott, Howard Parsons, Abe Weinberg and Oscar Sykes. The Murphy team has Clete Pannell, Lou Jenkins, Billy Stalcup, El Geib and Gene Hargett.

Central Shooters Win

Central High's riflemen defeated Bell Vocational High, 1237 to 1210 yesterday at the National Rifle Association range. Bill Stamper was high scorer for the winners with 263 points. It was the second win in three matches for Central.

Games Wanted

Chamberlain Vocational High is booking baseball games for this season. Teams interested may contact Coach Forest Powers at National 6000, extension 594, or at Hobart 8018.

Colts Acquire 4 Linemen

Baltimore, March 19 (U.P.).—A committee of businessmen, headed by Howard Busick, a Baltimore hotel operator, today completed the final details of a financial plan to keep the Baltimore Colts in the All-America Football Conference.

At the same time, four of the stronger teams in the league each transferred one good lineman to the Colts in an effort to bolster the team's chances in the 1948 race.

The New York Yankees gave the Colts Dick Barwegan, a former all Big Nine guard at Purdue. The three other players transferred to the Colts are tackles. Cleveland's Browns gave up 240-pound Ernie Blandin, the Los Angeles Dons yielded 248-pound Pete Berezny and the San Francisco Forty-Niners gave Fred Land, former Louisiana State star who will be making his professional debut next season.

In addition to the four linemen, it was reported that the Colts will receive Y. A. Tittle, L. S. U.'s brillfant quarterback last season, from Cleveland and will send Wilson (Bud) Schwenk to the Yankees in a three-cornered deal.

Trial on Milk Price-Fixing Set for May 5

Trial of the nine defendants charged with conspiring to fix milk prices here was tentatively set yesterday for May 5, after all pleaded not guilty to the anti-trust indictment.

Counsel for the seven dairies, the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association and that group's secretary-treasurer, Bruce B. Derrick, vigorously opposed the trial date set by Justice Alexander Holtzoff in District Court.

"I can see no reason for rushing a matter that, if it's wrong, has been in existence for 18 years," protested Roger Whiteford, one of the attorneys for Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase Dairy. Other defense attorneys also declared the May 5 date would leave them too little time to prepare their cases, pointing out that the grand jury indictment was returned only 12 days ago.

20 Days for Motions

John F. Baecher, heading a battery of Justice Department Antitrust Division attorneys, countered, "We think there is a definite public interest in an early date for this trial, which involves an economic crime. . . ."

After extensive discussion, Judge Holtzoff granted defense attorneys 20 days in which to file motions in the case, and set April 16 for arguments on the motions.

One of these motions, said Whiteford, may be a request for a change of venue (to move the trial to another jurisdiction outside Washington). Defense attorneys indicated they will also ask for a bill of particulars, after several said the charges, which declare a milk conspiracy has existed here since 1930, are much too "vague."

In setting the May 5 trial date, Justice Holtzoff indicated it may be postponed if it develops that defense attorneys require more time.

George B. Haddock of the Anti-trust Division predicted the Government could present its case in six trial days, while defense attorneys declared the trial would require two months or more.

Derrick, who has been managing the milk producers' association since 1934 and is the only individual defendant in the case, was released on personal bond of $1000. Chief counsel for Derrick and the association is Elwood H. Seal, former District corporation counsel.

CHARGED IN MILK CASE—Bruce B. Derrick, portly secretary-treasurer of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association, leaves District Court in jovial mood after pleading innocent. He faces trial May 5 on a charge of conspiring to fix milk prices here.

Seamstress, 70, Dies of Burns

A 70-year-old retired seamstress died yesterday of burns suffered when her clothing caught fire as she burned trash in the living room coal heater of her five-room home, 716 12th st. se., where she lived alone.

The woman, Mrs. Minnie Grimelsman, her clothes aflame, was found lying helpless on the floor, groaning for help, shortly after 4 a. m. She died in Casualty Hospital of third degree burns, ten hours later.

Neighbors said Mrs. Grimelsman had lived a withdrawn life the entire 30 years she had occupied the two-story frame dwelling. She had dedicated herself to the care of her aged blind mother, who died five years ago.

At Raleigh Haberdasher's alteration shop, where Mrs. Grimelsman was employed as seamstress from 1931 until she retired in 1943, she was known affectionately as "Mom."

Her employment record showed she had grown up in Fort Wayne, Ind., worked as saleswoman in department stores here and Chicago. She divorced her husband, a Navy man, now dead. They had no children.

Neighbors said she had only one known relative alive, a brother "somewhere in South America."

Former Head Advises One-Man TVA Rule

By The Associated Press

Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, first chairman of the TVA, recommended yesterday that a single administrator instead of a three-man board of directors should run the agency.

Morgan was fired by President Roosevelt in 1938 after a clash with David E. Lilienthal, then a member of the board.

He made his recommendation to a Senate subcommittee studying proposed changes in the TVA law.

"The board of directors for the TVA," he said, "should be Congress with a single administrator carrying out policies set by Congress."

"Seldom does a business have three administrators," he said. "The departments of the Government have a secretary, not three secretaries."

TVA's board now is Gordon R. Clapp, chairman, James P. Pope, former Idaho Senator, and Dr. H. A. Morgan, former University of Tennessee president.

The former chairman also recommended that Congress provide for "a continuing review of the TVA—and other independent agencies, too—to see if they are following the purposes of the laws creating them."

As he set out to comment on the details of a bill by Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.) proposing drastic changes in the TVA law, Morgan said:

"I find in various places in this bill changes that would bring results that might be disastrous without any intent to be disastrous."

He likened the TVA law to a "well-designed automobile" which might be ruined "if someone thought the wheels ought to be larger and changed them without regard to the whole mechanism."

McKellar proposes that the present board of directors be thrown out and that new members be named by the President "by and with the advice of the Senate."

Dismissal Moves Denied

Associate Justice Alexander Holtzoff in District Court yesterday denied motions for dismissal of the indictment charging conspiracy to embezzle union funds brought against four former officials of the International Hod Carriers, Builders and Common Laborers Local 74.

One of the four, Larry Kelly, former president of the local, is reported to have died in the Pacific while serving with the merchant marine during the war.

The others, facing trial April 19, are Joseph V. Moreschi, Achilles Persion and John Garvey.

Defense counsel had asked dismissal on the grounds that the indictment was vague.

Also rejected was a motion for separate trials for the defendants.

GSI Strike Peace Plan Is Rejected By Fleming

Counterproposal Is Offered; Grant Calls Meeting to Consider it Today

Government Services, Inc., yesterday offered a new peace formula for its 75-day-old cafeteria strike, but it was promptly turned down by Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming.

Fleming, commissioned by the White House to settle the dragging dispute, immediately sent a counterproposal back to GSI President U. S. Grant 3d.

Grant submitted his proposal on Fleming's request after a set of recommendations by Conciliator George E. Strong was rejected by GSI. Fleming, who appointed Strong, took matters into his own hands last weekend and has under consideration possible termination of GSI's contract for operation of the cafeterias.

Grant said his formula was similar to Strong's, except for the one point over which GSI turned it down. The union, Local 471, United Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers (UPW-CIO), had accepted the conciliator's recommendations.

Under Grant's proposal, two men would be selected from a list agreeable to both GSI and the union. One would administer terms of the settlement; the other would arbitrate, on an individual basis, any disputed cases of efficiency between strikers and any of the 1000 workers hired by GSI as replacements.

Grant and the GSI board of trustees were opposed to the Strong settlement formula because Strong would have the authority to decide those cases. Despite a compromise by Strong providing for appeal of his decisions, GSI contended he might reinstate most, if not all, the strikers without thorough examination.

To have an outside arbitrator determine efficiency disputes, the union argues, would leave room for GSI to raise hundreds of cases and thereby delay final settlement for months.

Fleming said last night his counterproposal was "very little" different from Grant's, but he would not disclose its contents. Grant was not available last night for comment.

Grant immediately called a special session of the GSI board to consider Fleming's proposal at noon today.

GWU Previews $3,897,000 'Medical Dream Come True'

MUSCLE-BUILDER—A new gadget—known as the all-in-one type progressive resistance exerciser—included in George Washington University's new hospital equipment is demonstrated by Marjorie Ionta, physical therapist, whose leg is guided by a pulley arrangement handled by Dorothy Voss, chief physical therapist

George Washington University's new hospital yesterday opened its doors to a press preview of what's in store for the sick here.

Its 405 beds (replacing the present GWU's 90-bed structure) will add 315 beds to help relieve the city's critical shortage in in-patient accommodations. Yet it will primarily be a research and teaching center.

Occupying a city block opposite historic Washington circle, the double-H, limestone-faced structure is expected to receive its first patients next Wednesday. Then patients in the city-squeezed edifice at 1339 H st. nw., will be moved to the pastel-shade, air-conditioned rooms and wards of the long-awaited structure.

And with the hospital is the promise of special care to Washington residents who have had to go to other cities for many diagnostic and treatment services in neuropsychiatry and neurology, physical medicine, radiology, orthoptics and maternal and infant care.

Yesterday, the smell of paint and newness was heavy; the rooms and from ponderous X-ray devices and corridors were cluttered with packed and unpacked furnishings. Mobile bassinets, the maternity and nursery division's pride, had not yet arrived. Colorful, fireproof drapes were being tacked up in the physicians' cafeteria.

But Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, president of the university, promised installment openings "as soon as acceptically available." And Dr. Walter A. Bloedorn, GWU's dean of the school of medicine, pointed out the main features with pride and termed it all "a medical dream come true."

Lanham Act. It was built by the Noise abatment devices, therapeutic color schemes, motion picture equipment for recording of operating techniques, bedside bassinets, self-adjusting beds, special therapy baths, X-ray machinery, venetian blinds, and grouped utility room units are materialized flashes of that dream.

From the only-one-in-the-city progressive resistance exericse tables to the more prosaic cash register; from the $23-a-day private maternity rooms to the machine-shop, lens-grinding room of the department of ophthalmology, to the cheer-inspiring flowers arrangement rooms, the hospital sparkles with modernity.

Its six white stories contain that many air-conditioned major operating rooms and three smaller ones, nine air-treated delivery and labor rooms, nurseries, and all the other departments and facilities for a fully-equipped general hospital. It will be staffed by 50 residents and internes, and will be classroom to most of the university's senior and junior medical students.

The hospital was started as a war public works project under the Public Buildings Administration of the Federal Works Agency at a cost approximating $3,897,000, of which $2,820,000 was for construction of fixed equipment and about $850,000 for site acquisition.

The cost breaks down to an outlay per patient bed of about $8370. The university is providing movable equipment and furnishings to cost about $970,000.

Each of the buildings has 1374 windows equipped with blackout curtains, and which will be graced by venetian blinds. Some 24 miles of curved baseboards eliminate those hard-to-clean floor corners.

Teachers Ask Pay Raises, Sick Leave

19 Groups Present Requests to Board Involving Hikes Of $800 to $1000

District school teachers yesterday asked the Board of Education for a pay raise and for sick and emergency leave.

The requests were presented by representatives of 19 teacher organizations at a hearing held by the board's committees on legislation and personnel.

Seventeen of the groups representing 2600 teachers indorsed a request presented by the Joint Legislative Council on Educational Organizatoins calling for an $800-a-year increase.

Sick Leave Approved

Also approved by the 17 groups was a sick leave proposal that would grant teachers 10 days' leave for personal illness each year accumulative to 90 days and 5 days' emergency leave each year.

The teacher groups will apepar today at 11 a. m. to present their case before the Senate District Fiscal Affairs Subcommittee which is studying pay raises and inequities in the present pay law.

School Superintendent Hobart M. Carning was authorized by the board to attend the hearings and notify the subcommittee that the board approves in principle sick leave, but has not yet made a decision on pay raises.

Before the board is a recommendation by Corning that teachers be granted the same cost of living increase granted Government workers.

In $800 to $1000 Range

Pay raise requests presented at yesterday's hearing ranged from the $800 to $1000 asked by Paul Cooke, president of the American Federation of Teachers, local 27, AFL, and by Ralph Watt, legislative chairman of the American Federation of Teachers, local 8.

About 100 teachers crowded into the board's hearing room at the Franklin Administration Building, 13th and K sts. nw., for the hearing.

Robert Botkin, chairman of the joint legislative council, told board members that the cost of living index indicates that pay raises teachers received last year have been wiped out by the rising cost of living. Salaries were increased 35 per cent while the cost of living has jumped 65 per cent, he said.

"It has been said that we must stop this inflationary spiral somewhere," Botkin said. "We, as a group, are simply trying to get hold of the tail of this spiral, and pull ourselves up to the level of others."

Referring to a statement made by Board Member Adelbert W. Lee that a pay raise for teachers would jeopardize the school building program, Botkin said:

"Of what value are buildings without . . . qualified . . . satisfied teachers, without teachers free from the fear of insecurity. The large number of temporary teachers in the school system at present is a direct challenge to take up more of the slack that causes people to shun a profession where standards are so high—and the pay so inadequate."

On the sick leave question, Botkin requested that each teacher be granted retroactive leave on the basis of one day for each year of service.

Cumulative Leave Asked

Miss Mary Dent, president of the Tiachers' Union, Local 8, asked that the sick leave be cumulative for an indefinite number of years.

Mrs. Isabel R. Ward, president of the Attendance Officers Association, asked that any salary increase and leave privileges granted teachers be extended to attendance officers.

George F. Waltz, legislation chairman of the Night and Summer School Teachers Association, said that the night and summer school teachers who work on a per diem basis received no salary adjustments under the 1947 Teachers Pay Act. He asked that they be granted a cost-of-living increase.

Park Board Seeks 1200-Acre Tract

Negotiations With FHA for Maryland Area Authorized

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission will try to acquire nearly 1200 acres of undeveloped land at Greenbelt, Md., for a park.

Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, NCPPC chairman, said the commission instructed its staff yesterday to negotiate for the acquisition with the Federal Housing Administration, which has announced it may sell the land.

If acquired, GGrant said, the land would be under the National Park Service for development as a "regional park." Although 11 miles from hte District line, it is within the province of NCPPC's plans for beautifying the Greater Washington area. The land was described as hilly and wooded, suitable for a park.

The park would be on the new Baltimore-Washington highway, now under construction. NCPPC already has approved a plan of improvement for the park site, including a golf course, tennis courts, picnic areas and camping sites.

Also at yesterday's meeting, the planning body approved erecetion of a building at the southwest corner of 16th and I sts. nw. Although the structure would be for commercial use by the Motion Picture Producers Association, Grant said it meets the requirements for buildings in that residential section.

Plans were considered also for another 16th st. building, on the southwest corner at K st., diagonally across from the Statler Hotel. The commission recommended that this building, planned for a bank and offices, include parking facilities and offff-street loading before approval is given.

Both buildings have yet to be approved by the Board of Zoning Adjustments, Grant said.

At its morning session, NCPPC gave approval to enlargement of the bus terminal behind the Coast Guard building at 13th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. This area and the parking lot between the District Building and the Labor Department are under consideration in plans for improvement of the Great Plaza, on which the parking lot stands. Final action to beautify the plaza while retaining much of the parking space will be taken in cooperation with the Fine Arts Commission, Grant said.

In other decisions, NCPPC approved erection of four service stations in first commercial areas and passed favorably on a plan for road and zoning changes in the neighborhood of New York ave. ne. and the National Arboretum.

Postlude

Pianists Score Hit at Music Club

Duo-pianists Fanny Ross Henbest and Margaret Tolson, and Marie Olive, mezzo-soprano, made yesterday's Friday Morning Music Club one of its finest programs in seasons.

The keyboard artists played Claude Debussy's brooding suite, "In Black and White," written in part as a memorial to a young French officer killed in action in 1915. The harmonic content of the suite is less rich and complex than Debussy often uses. In its place we hear bitternes sin sound, and harsh treatment of the chorale, "A Mighty Fortress" as if to point an accusing finger against an enemy with whom Debussy could never reconcile himself either musically or politically.

Their final group found the Henbest-Tolson team in brasher mood. A too long but clever Cuban dance of Aaron Copland, two pieces by John Klein, a witty dance by Ernst Bacon, and Ray Green's Jig for a Concert wound things up in great style. Klein's Burr Frolic, the Bacon, and above all, the Concert Jig, made terrific use of the cross-rhythmic possibilities of two keyboards. The players are perfect in ensemble work, and possess a joint sense of style that points up and enhances all they do. Their art was vigorously applauded by the club's members and guests.

Marie Olive, accompanied by Elva Book, sang a group of five fine songs. Of these her best work came in the final number, "Everything That I Can Spy," where she allowed the line of the song to speak for itself. Earlier her tendency to rephrase many sections of songs broke up the composer's original designs. Miss Olive's voice is a truly lovely instrument which generally comes to the listener easily.

Report by Larceny Victim

Policeman Fined for Failing To Record Crime Complaint

A trial board yesterday recommended that Police Pvt. Frank Strader, jr., station clerk at the Fourth Precinct, be fined $25 for failing to record a crime complaint made by a larceny victim.

The same fine was recommended for Pvt. John P. Lutz of the Sixth Precinct for dallying in stores and failing to patrol his beat. Both policemen pleaded guilty to the charges.

Police said Strader's fine was among the first since enforcement began on police regulations requiring that all crime complaints be recorded. Exposure by The Washington Post last July that complaints were being hidden to give the department a better crime record brought revision of the entire system.

Trained That Way, He Says

Strader testified he was acting in the way he had been trained. In his two years with the Metropolitan Police, he declared, it has been the custom not to record before they were investigated.

The custom, he said, was prevalent in the Seventh Precinct, where he was first assigned, and in the Fourth, before Capt. Clarence H. Lutz took command last December 1.

Capt. Benjamin C. Kuehling, predecessor at the precinct to Lutz, "had a practice of not reporting a dog bite even if it was reported by another precinct," Strader added.

A second count against Strader brought a warning from the board. He was accused of failing to turn the report over to the precinct detective for investigation. Strader said he was fairly sure it had been given to Pvt. Lloyd B. Furr, but Furr denied it.

Captain Lutz testified the charge arose from a complaint made last December 18 by Earle Young, 500 Third st. nw., that savings bonds valued at $225 had been stolen from his house. No record exists in the precinct, Captain Lutz said. The first time he heard about it was when the Treasury asked for confirmation before new bonds could be issued.

The board took under advisement charges made by Captain Lutz against Pvt. Robert Reeves, also of the Fourth Precinct, for prejudicial conduct and giving untruthful statements to his superiors.

Reeves said his official residence was in the basement at 2129 G st. nw, where his mother takes care of a sorority house. Two detectives, however, said they had seen him come out from another address in the early hours of two mornings. Reeves testified he had brought laundry there one morning and food for the children of a friend on the second. Other witnesses corroborated his testimony.

Four Men Killed As Truck-Trailer Rams Parked Car

Hancock, Md., March 19 (AP).—All four men were killed today when a heavy tractor-trailer truck rammed into the rear of a parked car on U. S. 40 7 miles east of here.

The dead are Homer Ernest Weller, 40, of Hancock; Fluford Charles Fritz, 43, Harry Younker, 61, and his son Lloyd Younker, 31. The latter three lived near Hancock on RFD 2.

Dr. Edward Ditto, Washington County medical examiner, said Fritz and the elder Younker were killed instantly. Weller died in an ambulance taking him to the Washington County Hospital in Hagerstown and the younger Younker died there five hours later of a fractured skull, a fractured pelvis and internal injuries.

The four men commuted daily from their homes to the Victor Products Corp. refrigerator plant in Hagerstown.

Freak Shot Goes Through Floor, Kills Son's Wife

Cumberland, Md., March 19 (AP). Police said a bullet accidentally fired from a pistol in an upstairs room went through the floor and killed a woman sitting in a chair downstairs in the living room.

Mrs. Mary L. Andrews, 45, wife of James E. Andrews, an orchestra leader, was the victim of the freak accident, said Detective Thomas J. See.

Her father-in-law, 73-year-old James W. Andrews, told police he was showing a .38-caliber pistol to his son last night when it discharged.

Andrews and his son were in a room on the second floor while their wives waited in the living room.

Andrews planned to give the pistol, which he had had for 30 years, to his son.

The elder Andrews was released after questioning.

Beating Woman Nets Year, 9 Months

Prince Georges Man Sought to Persuade Victim to Marry Him

George Paul Harding, 36, former Prince Georges filling station operator, yesterday was sentenced in District Court to one year and nine months imprisonment for the beating of a former sweetheart, Alsace Lorraine McCormick, 29, of 24 8th st. ne.

Harding was charged with driving the woman from the District into Maryland and beating her until she promised to marry him.

Visiting Federal Judge Ben Moore sentenced Harding to one year for carrying a gun and to a total of nine months on two assault charges.

Two men were given jail terms on charges of carnal knowledge involving girls 15 and 11 years old.

Hollie Houston, 30, of 1501 Vermont ave. nw., was sentenced to from 4 to 12 years for assault to commit robbery and carryi ¿ a weapon.

Houston had been floored by his intended victim, Harry Asaka, proprietor of a market at 1634 11th st. nw., when the former tried to hold up the market last February 9.

Associate Justice Richmond B. Keech took under advisement a motion for a new trial for James B. Long, soda fountain concessionaire convicted of raping a girl, 13. Defense Attorney Saul Lichtenberg told the court a new witness had been discovered who would testify that Long did not leave the drug store on the day the rape was committed.

White's Ferry Back, On Usual 'Schedule'

Frederick, Md., March 19 (AP).—The on-again-off-again White's ferry was back on her regular "schedule" across the Potomac River today after a two-month layoff. It was the official sign of spring in these parts.

The ferry, which has followed an erratic schedule since pre-Civil War days, knocked off last Christmas because of river ice.

Normal operations involve service from 6 a. m. to 10 p. m. on signals from passengers on either shore.

Phone Listings Out Today in 2 Volumes

The telephone directory, only book that can change the subject 465,000 times in 1880 pages and still hold reader interest, comes out today.

In twin volumes for the first time in Washington, the publication still holds claim as the city's most democratic tome—the Riches are on page 694 and the Poors on 663; the White House on 857 and the Gospel Mission on 326.

Distribution of the alphabetical and classified books to 519,000 subscribers begins today with 200 men and 80 trucks on the task expected to require 12 days. The District, in going into the two-book class, joins Manhattan, Chicago, Los Angeles, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Detroit and Boston.

The alphabetical book contains 976 pages with 375,000 phone numbers and weighs 2½ pounds. The classified volume, in bright yellow cover, carries 90,000 listings on 904 pages.

It doesn't get to "Adam" until page 7; "Eve" is on 262.

The American Automobile Association leads off, but last year's last subscriber, Mrs. Mary N. Zywukso, has lost her place to Albert J. Zyvoloski of Hyattsville.

There is no admonition—as there ominously was in 1942—to refrain from using the telephone during an air-raid alarm, but one "Atom" and three "Atomics" appear.

Directly beneath them is: "Atonement Lutheran Church."

Howard U. Students Gain Point

Another step toward admission of Howard University Medical School students and faculty into District-operated Gallinger Hospital was taken yesterday.

Officials of George Washington and Georgetown Universities, which presently teach students in the hospital wards, agreed with Howard University representatives, Health Department spokesmen and Oscar Ewing, Federal Security Administration head, on a plan to become effective next fall.

Under the program, Howard will name a member to the executive committee of the Gallinger medical staff. This policy-making group now includes two representatives from GW and Georgetown and will eventually include two from Howard, according to the plan.

This group will handle the problems arising from the admission of the Negro personnel from Howard to the hospital. Meanwhile, Howard will be permitted to begin teaching its medical students at Gallinger next fall and will nominate one fourth of the total number of internes for service starting July 1, 1949.

The Howard School would nominate attending physicians in pediatrics, communicable disease, dermatology and assume responsibility for professional services in those divisions up t one third the bed capacity of those services. The school would be "progressively granted hospital and teaching privileges and representation on committees and medical staff of Gallinger up to equality" with the two other schools.

Commissioner Guy Mason, who also was present at the meeting in the George Washington Library building, said he would present the plan to his fellow Commissioners shortly for the final approval required before it may take effect.

Dr. Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard, praised the agreement and said Howard would accept it as a challenge and hoped it "may bring great credit to our city and our country."

He said he hoped the Secretary of State some day would be able to take foreign visitors to the hospital and show the cooperative effort as a demonstration of democracy at work.

Short Haircut Returns, With or Without a Bang

Short hair is back with a bang—or without one, if you'd rather show your forehead.

It is far easier to care for short hair than the longer styles we have had for the past few years. Take care, however, not to try an elaborate, high-fashion sort of hairdo. Smart simplicity is the best hair style.

If your hair is extra dry apply, every other day, a few drops of some preparation which contains oil-rich ingredients.

Hostess Finds Her Trousseau On Air Flights to Europe

When Joann Sisney, TWA flight hostess, became engaged to Manning H. Kennedy a few months ago she set the wedding date for Palm Sunday.

Then she started on a shopping tour for her trousseau. She shopped after working hours, but not on American main streets. Her entire trousseau was assembled, piece by piece, in Rome, Madrid, Paris, Dublin and the Azores. Whenever her plane stayed long enough in one spot Joann dashed off to browse through the shops. Sometimes she found what she wanted immediately. On other occasions she left an order, picked up the garment on a return visit.

What she managed to collect would be the envy of any American bride. For her wedding day she has a custom-made dress from Paris and flower hat from the same fashion center. Gloves and handbag are from Rome.

Her going away ensemble, a three-piece gabardine suit, was designed and made in Madrid. She put her order in with the Madrid tailor and called for the suit and coat on her last flight to the Spanish capital.

In addition, she had a lovely pure silk print dress and blouse. She purchased the material in Rome and made the garments herself here in Washington between flights. Another lovely piece in her trousseau is a pink hand embroidered blouse which she bought on a recent trip to Santa Maria in the Azores.

Joann didn't neglect household wares either. In Dublin she collected a fine assortment of Irish linen luncheon, bridge and vanity sets, and a hand-embroidered table cloth made at the Good Shepherd's Convent in Limerick.

Her marriage to Mr. Kennedy, TWA transportation agent at National Airport, will take place in the Stone Chapel at Drury College in Springfield, Mo. Joann, who has been serving on TWA's regular overseas flights for the past two years, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Sisney of that city.

Egyptian Envoys Entertain at Cocktail Party

Two bachelor hosts, Col. M. A. Khalifa and Col. M. H. Haiba of the Egyptian Embassy, entertained top officials of the Army, Navy and Air Force yesterday at an embassy cocktail party. Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal was among the 200 or more guests who were received between the hours of 6 and 9 o'clock.

The Ambassador of India, Asaf Ali, attended, and the Minister of Syria and Mme. El-Khouri. All the staff of the foreign liaison office of the War Department and their wives were invited, as well as military attaches from the different embassies.

The party was given in appreciation of assistance from War and State Department officials in bringing a number of Egyptian military and air force officers here to study in United States military schools. In the receiving line with Colonel Khalifa and Colonel Haiba were three students who are now studying at Fort Benning—Lieut. Abdul Elsalam Badawi and Lieut. Ahmad Nassif of the Egyptian army and Maj. Ali Attia of the Egyptian air force. Mme Zaki, wife of the First Secretary, also assisted the two hosts in receiving.

Col. Ferdinand Duke of New York, who had known Col. Khalifa in Cairo, came down for the party. Loy Henderson, Gen. Bonner Fellers and Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg were among other guests.

Mrs. Beale Honored At Peruvian Embassy

By Marie McNair

The new Peruvian Ambassador and Senora de Ferreyros gave their first big party yesterday at the embassy, and at Mrs. Harold Walker's house "old Washington" gathered at the tea given by her sister, the Baroness von Schoen.

At the Peruvian Embassy Mrs. Truxtun Beale was the honor guest and before the 100 or more in the assembly she received the Order of the Sun of the Peruvian government in grateful recognition of her part in the restoration of the Peruvian National Library.

The library, an institution known throughout South America, burned to the ground half a dozen years ago. Mrs. Beale's contribution to the new library was a collection of books on art.

Hosts and honor guests stood together as guests came in. Senora de Ferreyros in black, the skirt made in three tiers and the gown covered in black spangles. Mrs. Beale wore black satin and a hat fashioned of silver grey satin ribbons.

Mrs. Nicholas Longworth turned up for this party and sipped champagne on a sofa with Mrs. Charles Dewey, who was there with former Representative Dewey.

John Campbell White, former American Ambassador to Peru, and Mrs. White were there renewing friendships with the Minister-Counselor of the Peruvian Embassy and Senora de Fernandez-Davila, whom they first met in Argentina, later in Peru, and now in Washington.

Mrs. Moffat Attends

Chatting in the drawing room were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Joseph Grew and his daughter, Mrs. Pierrepont Moffat, a symphony in brown; William Dawson, United States representative to the Pan American Union, and James Stebbins of the Grace Line, who was talking to Senora Julia MacLean.

Around the buffet I saw Dr. Luther Evans, Librarian of Congress, and Mrs. Evans; Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins, Miss Irene Boyle and Senorita Luceredo Castro, pretty in pale blue from her hat to her hem.

Dr. Jorge Basadre, head of the Cultural Division of the Pan American, was the one who inquired if the usual custom of bestowing a kiss on the recipient of the medal was to be followed. Senora de Gibson, American wife of the Third Secretary of the Peruvian Embassy, told me she's writing scripts for the Junior League Follies of '48 and that rehearsals are uncovering professional talents.

Around and about was Senorita Ana Rosa Ferreyros, dark-eyed daughter of the house, in a gray frock. Among others there were Paul Daniels of the State Department and Mrs. Daniels; Elim O'Shaunessy, and U. Grant-Smith.

Baroness Von Schoen's Party

At General and Mrs. Patrick Hurley's house on Massachusetts ave., which Mrs. Harold Walker has leased for an indefinite period, another party was being given. The hostess, Baroness von Schoen, sister of Mrs. Walker, had chosen some of her prettiest friends to sit at the tea table placed before a sofa and the hearth.

The hostess wore a portrait gown of sweeping black velvet with low neckline, and Mrs. Walker was there to greet guests, too, in a black fringed gown with a rope of pearls about her throat.

Mrs. James L. Houghteling was among those taking their turn at the tea table and cocktails were being passed on trays.

Everybody there was urged to see the new portrait of Co-Co, Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert's French poodle, painted by J. Jacobs, the artist who did the two portraits of Evie Robert which hang in the same room.

Co-Co's picture is a masterpiece in the ridiculous, showing a very surprised dog with a bare lamb chop bone in white French frill tied with a red ribbon suspended over his head. The paintings of Evie are as lovely as she really is, one done in riding clothes, the other in a deep cut decolletage gown.

Farewells Said

I met the Argentine Ambassador and Senora de Ivanissevich saying their farewells before leaving on Monday for Argentina. Mrs. Emerson Howe and Mrs. Emlen Davies shared a seat by the stone fireplace, and Mrs. Philip Rhinelander, a next-door neighbor, came early to pay her call.

Then there were Clarence Hewes, who was introducing his sister, Mrs. Flowerree, from New Orleans; the Ralph Snowden Hills and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bell Sweeney, Mrs. David LeBreton, Mme. Rosso and Merritt Swift making up congenial conversational groups.

Mrs. Stanley Hornbeck couldn't stay long because she wanted to see her husband off for the Oxford boat races dinner at which he was to be a speaker.

Spanish Class Plans Lunch At Embassy

Well known members of the well-known Spanish class groups will gather in the kitchen of the Argentine Embassy today to prepare a luscious lunch for the Ambassador and Senora Ivanissevich. The ladies will be supervised in their cooking by their Spanish instructor, Prof Ramon Ramos.

The Spanish groups include the White House, the Senate and the Shoreham. The menu for the day includes Picadillo a la Cubana, Arroz blanco, ensalada mixta, dulce de Guayaba con Queso and Pan Blanco con Mantequilla y Cafe crislo.

Luncheon is to be served buffet style at small tables in the formal dining room of the embassy. Those who will prepare the food are Mrs. James Kem, Mrs. Tom Connally, Mrs. Fulton R. Gruver, Mrs. William Jervey, Mrs. John Harry King, jr., Mrs. James H. Gilman, Mrs. Blair Childs, Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, Mrs. Leslie Biffle and Miss Reathel Odom.

Coffee and salad will be served by Mrs. John L. Sullivan, Mrs. Wiley B. Rutledge, Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall and Mrs. Thomas A. Stone.

Congressional Club Hears Dr. Yen

By Genevieve Reynolds

While the Nation's lawmakers debated the pros and cons of aid to China yesterday on Capitol Hill, their spouses gathered at the Congressional Club's tea to hear Dr. James Y. Yen, noted Chinese educator, describe the mass education movement in his homeland.

Dr. Yen, who substituted as speaker for Representative Walter Judd, said that with peace China could stamp out all illiteracy within 5 to 10 years. "More than 60 million Chinese rural dwellers have been taught to read and write since 1929," he explained. "There are 465 schools where the project was first initiated in a province in Central China."

It was Dr. Yen who conceived the idea of working out 1300 basic Chinese characters so the peasants of China, who constitute about 75 per cent of the population, could be taught to read and write. After some 80,000 young people had been taught in the first experiment, 15,000 of that number banded together to teach others what they had learned.

The mass education program also includes cooperative marketing, scientific farming, credit cooperatives and preventive health programs, according to the speaker.

Mme. Koo, wife of the Chinese Ambassador, introduced Dr. Yen. Mrs. Clifford Davis, club president, in turn introduced Mme. Koo and presided.

Special guests included Mme. Tan, wife of the Chinese Minister.

Among the approximately 300 members and their guests present were Mrs. John Bricker, wife of the Ohio Senator; Mrs. Carl Hatch, wife of the New Mexico Senator; Mrs. Thad Brown.

Mrs. Lowell Stockman, wife of the Oregon Representative, had as her guests several friends from the home State including Mrs. William Dahlton and her daughter Mrs. Robert Byrnes; also Mrs. Arthur Nohel and Mrs. Alice Winn of this city.

Glimpsed here and there were Mrs. Walt Horan, wife of the Washington Representative; Mrs. Karl M. LeCompte, wife of the Iowa Representative; Mrs. Joseph Bryson, wife of the South Carolina Representative; Mrs. Mike Mansfield, wife of the Montana Representative; Mrs. Fred Bradley, wife of the Michigan Representative; Mrs. E. H. Hedrick, wife of the West Virginia Representative, who had as her guest, Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith.

Still others present were Mrs. Valentine Pottle and her mother, Mme. Basset, Miss Georgette Basset—who lived many years in China; Mrs. Cleveland Newton, Mrs. Johnson Erland, Mrs. Achilles Sakell, Mrs. Hugh Butler, Mrs. Harry McGregor, wife of the Ohio Representative.

Your Questions On Homemaking

Recently I was told that a certain monstrosity, which was being used as a catch-all on the back porch of our farm house, was in reality a valuable antique and had a name—kitchen safe. I have now removed some six or eight layers of old paint, and it seems that the wood of the thing is a beautiful cherry. This has precipitated numerous debates as to the proper way to do justice to the finishing of this piece of furniture. I would prefer the linseed oil treatment if this can be done with cherry. Would you please advise me?

E. V. M.

The linseed oil finish would be lovely on cherry. This finish is resistant to usage and improves with rubbings. Apply the oil to raw wood, allow several hours to soak in and wipe off surplus. Rub well. After several days, with daily rubbings, another coat of oil is applied and given the same treatment. Further applications are made at intervals until it will absorb no more oil. Frequent and hard rubbings will develop a gloss, and the gloss will continue to develop with additional rubbings.

My bathinette has developed a slight leak on the folds of the canvas tub. Since I am planning to pass it on to a friend, I am wondering if you can suggest a way in which I could seal these leaks and make it usable for another baby.

I. U.

Perhaps you can stop the leak by cementing a piece of waterproof canvas to the underside of the fold where the leaks occur. Use rubber cement, placing a thin layer of cement onto both pieces of canvas and forcing them together by pressing or hammering. Also, these leaks can sometimes be stopped by painting the outside of the canvas tub with the sort of substance used to waterproof the tops of cars.

Is there any place in the metropolitan area, or elsewhere, where I could obtain a good grade of plain white china suitable for handpainting? I am interested particularly in 9 or 10 inch plates, creamers and sugars; in other words, odd pieces that could be sold in a gift shop, rather than a set of china.

M. H. K.

It seems that china firms both in this country and abroad have not resumed making in quantity plain china for painting since the war. The manager of a china store on Connecticut ave., for instance, says that although he always stocked it before the war, he has not received a shipment since and has no idea when he will.

The floors in our apartment are soft pine and have been sanded down to the nails, so sanding is out. They have been varnished over dirt and much scrubbing has done no good. I can't even get the portions of the floor where the varnish is worn off to look clean. Is there anything I can use that will clean the floor and remove the varnish in one fell swoop? Someone suggested lye. If that would work, how do I use it?

M. S. C.

Alkaline paint and varnish removers can be purchased at paint and hardware stores as powders to be mixed with water and are excellent means of removing old finishes from floors. They soften the varnish, which can then be removed by wiping and with scrapers and steel wool. Some of them have bleaching properties, too, and lighten stains in the wood.

A mixture of three pounds of washing soda to a gallon of water will also soften varnish and paint so that they can be wiped off. Three pounds of tri-sodium phosphate to the gallon of water has the same effect and is quick acting when applied boiling hot with a brush or mop. Of the two, washing soda is likely to raise the grain on the wood, so that sandpapering is required after drying. Lye is not recommended as a paint and varnish remover on floors and other indoor woodwork because of probable injury to the wood fibers. Also, it is highly caustic to the skin and injurious to shoes and clothing.

After the use of remover all traces must be taken up for, if any remains, new finish will be harmed or prevented from adhering. Traces of alkaline removers such as those discussed above are taken up by rinsing with water. I'd suggest that after the varnish is removed you scrub your floor well with a large handful of coarse steel wool dipped in hot, soapy water containing washing soda. With the dirt loosened by scrubbing with plenty of water, this should be taken up with a sponge, and rinsing should follow with a sponge and clear water. The floor should be washed in sections, a scrubbed place being rinsed and dried before going on to the next.

I have a light maple dining room suite which is badly scratched. It is too light for scratch remover polish, and cream polish or paste wax does not help the scratches. I have been thinking of using maple simonize on it. Would this help?

M. B. G.

Maple simonize would be excellent for your furniture. Also, you could darken regular paste wax a bit by working a little burnt umber into it to match the shade of your furniture.

JAMES J. METCALFE, author of the "Portrait" column which appears in The Washington Post and other newspapers, greets an admirer at Walter Reed Hospital. She is Pfc. Ruth L. Snyder who heard the poet when he spoke at the hospital this week. The talk was one of nine he gave on a speaking tour of the city

'Portrait's' Author Winds Up Week's Speaking Tour in City

James J. Metcalfe, author of "Portraits," which appear in The Washington Post and more than a 100 other newspapers throughout the United States and Ireland, wound up a week's lecture tour of the city last evening with an interview on "Television Journal" of WNBW-TV.

In his talks he appeared before young and old, men and women.

He spoke Monday at the assembly of Chevy Chase Junior College and was guest at a luncheon which followed. That afternoon he spoke at the Red Cross Theater at Walter Reed General Hospital to an audience of a 100 veterans and to 500 more, confined to beds, who heard his talk over the radio. The poet was greeted by Maj. Gen. George C. Beach, the commanding officer, and Colonel Coates, his assistant in charge of welfare activities.

Also on Monday, Mr. Metcalfe spoke at Bethesda Naval Hospital Theater and to bed patients. Lieutenant Commander Crawford arranged for approximately 700 Navy men to hear the talk.

Mr. Metcalfe was the guest of Bethesda Women's Club on Tuesday and that evening he spoke before a small audience, made up mostly of his former colleagues in the South Building auditorium of the Department of Agriculture. Later that evening he was guest of the Business and Professional Women's Club.

He spoke also to the 1700 pupils of McKinley High School, to students of Montgomery-Blair Senior High School, was interviewed by Joe Dosh on WINX and addressed his fellow members of the Eagles of Alexandria.

One of the highlights of his visit in Washington was his meeting with Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, general chairman of President Truman's Highway Safety Commission. General Fleming invited Metcalfe to visit his office in the Federal Works Building to thank him personally for his "Portrait" on "Car Conduct," which appeared February 12 in The Washington Post and other newspapers. Metcalfe offered the use of his safety poems to General Fleming.

D. C., Regional Easter Sales Off in Week

By S. Oliver Goodman

Easter sales continued to lag here and elsewhere in the week ended March 13.

Washington department store sales in latest week showed a dip of 1 per cent under the same 1947 period, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond noted yesterday. Considering how much prices have risen, the drop in unit sales was even greater. With Easter a week earlier than last year, merchants seem resigned to the belief that holiday sales this year will be less than last year's.

Regionally, store sales in the Fifth Reserve District in the week ended March 13 were reported 4 per cent under the same 1947 period.

NEW OFFICERS: C. Guy White is the new president of the Traffic Club of Washington, succeeding I. C. Olsen. White came here from Georgia in 1927 and is district freight agent of Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. Other new officers are W. E. Hayghe of Treasury Department, first vice president; F. G. McCann of New York Central, second vice president; C. E. Milford of Army Transportation Division, secretary-treasurer.

PROGRESS: The United Services Life Insurance Co., whose home offices are in Washington and whose business is limited to officers of the uniformed services and their families, yesterday reported sales of $7,821,000 for 1947. This brought total insurance in force at the end of the year to $33,810,547. Assets increased to $3,108,730 and surplus was up $116,000. A dividend of 6 per cent was declared on capital stock. Elected to the board of directors was Lieut. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton of the Air Force.

HOLDINGS CUT: North American Co.'s holdings of Potomac Electric Power Co. common stock had been reduced to 290,075 shares as of December 31, 1947, the annual pamphlet report shows. Its investment in Capital Transit Co. had been cut to 109,458 shares on the same date. Herbert C. Freeman, North American's president, told stockholders that demand for electricity was running well above wartime peaks and that the company's subsidiaries have entered upon the greatest expansion program in their history.

RAIL REVENUES: The Association of American Railroads estimated that operating revenues of Class 1 carriers were 12.9 per cent higher last month than in February, 1947. The estimated freight revenue in February, 1948, was 14.5 per cent above a year ago. Estimated passenger revenue was up 0.5 per cent. The upturn in passenger revenue was the first shown in many months. AAR officials said it reflected higher passenger rates rather than increased passenger travel.

FIRST DELIVERY: The first bolts of cloth, resulting from the recent million-dollar purchase of an English woolen mill, were delivered to Dan Brown yesterday at Washington National Airport. The cloth was flown by a British Overseas Airway plane from London and will be on display at the store of Louis & Dan Brown, Ltd., at 812 14th st., nw. The brothers Louis and Dan of Washington purchased the 150-year-old firm of Sunderland & Hainsworth, Ltd., and have announced that they will expand to other major American cities.

SUPER BUS: Greyhound Corp. is road-testing new super bus which has three separate passenger compartments, drinking fountain, washroom and toilets. Other features: pillow-type radio receiver built into each seat headrest, individually controlled reading lights, seats 50 passengers instead of present 37, glare-resistant and heat-absorbing safety glass, wider and roomier seats, two air-cooled engines and air conditioning.

ODD LOTS: Security Storage Co., Washington, declared regular dividend of $1.25 a share on capital stock, payable April 10 to stock of record April 5 . . . Premium income of the Insurance Co. of North America group in 1947 was $139,781,964, an increase of $40,685,470 over 1946 . . . Prince Georges Bank & Trust Co. declared the regular semiannual dividend of 5 per cent on capital stock, payable April 1 . . . Wall Street Journal estimates that American Airlines, United Air Lines and Trans World Airline lost 10.8 million in first quarter this year, compared with $16,388,830 in like 1947 period . . . New president of the Old Dominion Bank is E. T. Holland, succeeding the late George F. Cook. Three officers added to directorate are William E. Robey, J. H. White, jr., and C. R. Dye.

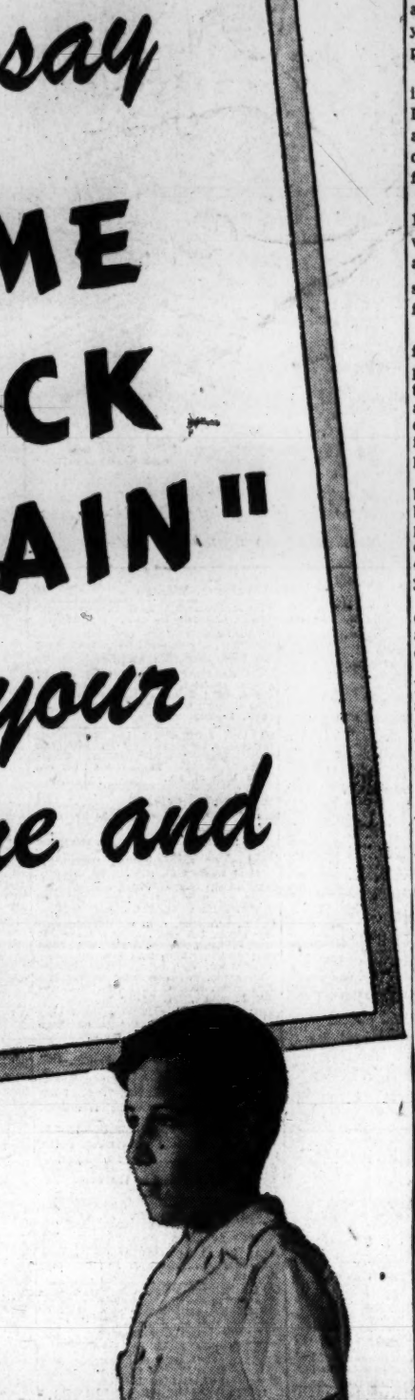
When you say "COME BACK AGAIN" It costs your carrier time and money



YOUR Washington Post carrier has to pay for the papers he's delivered whether he collects from you or not. So when you ask him to "come back later" because you're not prepared for his visit, it's money out of his pocket to meet his bill and time out of his day to call on you again.

If you work for a salary you expect to be paid the first time you see the paymaster on payday. If you run a business you expect your customers to send in their checks for your services promptly. You have expenses of your own and it takes money to meet them. Just so, your carrier depends on payment from you to take care of his expenses.

When you fail him on collection night it may mean a sacrifice of money he needs for immediate personal, home or school purposes. If you ask him to return later he's wasted the time that it took to visit you—and a carrier's life is a busy one. He has a seven-day-a-week early morning job in addition to going to school, doing his homework and joining in outside activities.

Be fair with your carrier. Pay him on time. And if you're moving, notify him in advance. Papers delivered after you've moved do you no good, and your carrier has to pay for them. If you don't see the boy, call NA. 4200 and tell Circulation.

Your carrier will thank you for your cooperation by giving you the best of service.

18.5 Pct. Cut In Tobacco Acreage Due

Tobacco farmers expect to plant some 1,528,000 in 1948, a cut of about 18½ per cent from last year's acreage, the Agriculture Department said yesterday.

The greatest cut is being made in flue-cured tobacco acreage. Dark air-cured and fire-cured acreages are down while burley and cigar tobacco are little changed from last year.

The department said about 1,650,000,000 pounds of tobacco would be produced in 1948 if average yields per acre for the several types should equal the five-year average yields.

Prospective flue-cured acreage for 1948 totals 876,000 acres compared with 1,183,000 in 1947. If the five-year average yield per acre should be realized, production of about 920,000,000 pounds of flue-cured tobacco would be expected.

The indicated 411,000 acres of burley tobacco is only 2 per cent below last year's acreage, but 16 per cent under that of 1946. Production of burley may approximate 450 million pounds if average yields are realized.

Prospective acreages of fire-cured and dark air-cured tobacco are indicated at 74 and 85 per cent of the 1947 acreages, respectively.

The indicated net change from last year for all cigar tobaccos is slight. A 13 per cent increase in acreage of wrappers practically offset a decline of 6 per cent in binders. Fillers are expected to be unchanged.

Leesburg Man's Appeal to Reduce Sentence Denied

Greensboro, N. C., March 19 (AP). Judge Johnson J. Hayes today denied a motion by High Namon Rakes, Leesburg, Va., dairyman, to reduce the three-year sentence imposed on him Jan. 30 in the Fredericksburg, Va., bank case.

The dairyman was charged with aiding and abetting W1111a m Reaves Gardner, executive vice president of the Planters branch of the Farmers and Merchants Bank in Fredericksburg, in the misapplication of between $400,000 and $500,000.

In reaffirming his original sentence, Judge Hayes said today:

"If the court made any mistake in its judgment, it was in imposing only a five-year sentence against Gardner."

Red Lights Banned For Md. Firemen

Baltimore, March 19 (AP).—The attorney general's office has advised Maryland's hundreds of volunteer firemen that they are not entitled to have red lights on the front of their automobiles.

The ruling had been asked by W. Lee Elgin, commissioner of motor vehicles.

Attorney General Hall Hammond pointed out that only authorized emergency vehicles are entitled to display red lights on front and private automobiles of volunteer firemen are not "authorized emergency vehicles"—even though the firemen may sometimes use them to go to fires.

Hammond's ruling was forwarded to Maryland state police.

Many Md. Women Laid Off From Jobs

Baltimore, March 19 (AP).—J. Milton Patterson, director of the State Department of Public Welfare, reported today there has been a notable increase in the number of women laid off from their jobs.

Patterson gave this factor as one of the reasons for an increase in the public-assistance payments which his department handled in February.

They totaled $1,041,949, an $11,000 increase over January and the third month in a row that they have topped the million-dollar mark.

Magistrate's Pay Set at $100 Monthly

Annapolis, Md., March 19 (AP).—Vincent A. Tubman, Carroll County magistrate, will continue to receive $100 a month for his services under a Court of Appeals decision rendered today.

Tubman had sued the county commissioners to restore his salary to $1920 a year.

Last April the commissioners decided to cut the trial magistrate's salary back to $1200 a year—the amount set as the legal minimum. It had been raised to $1920, also by authority of law.

Md. 'Boy Legislators' Elect 'Officials' Today

Two hundred "boy legislators" will meet at the Univeristy of Maryland administration building at College Park, beginning at 8 a. m. today to elect a "Governor" and other State officials.

Those elected by the Maryland high school youths will officiate at the "model Legislature" which will convene in Annapolis April 22-24. The project is sponsored annually by the YMCA to give boys training in State government.

Charlottesville to Tax Tickets, Utility Bills

Charlottesville, Marcsh 19 (AP).—The city council in a special business session called to consider further the proposed 1948-49 city budget, voted unanimously to propose levies on amusement admissoins and utility bills. The rate of the increase would be about 5 per cent.

Councilmen said today the rates of the levies would be fixed so as to bring the city about $25,000 from the amusement tax and $60,000 from the utility levy.

Little Misses Cast Their Bread Upon the Waters

Most of Washington's women's clubs have been fairly well publicized. But I've never seen any recognition of the Little Miss Club.

It's composed of Virginia Sweeney, Doris Weinberg, Betty Ann Porter, Elaine Eichner, Jean Carter and Geraldine Hertz, all 12 years old and students at Paul Junior High School, and Marilyn Novos, who is 11 and goes to Truesdell.

The club was organized in the fall of 1946. Since then, it has conducted many activities which have raised funds for Children's Hospital and for the children of Alderney Island (one of the three Channel Islands occupied by the Germans during the war).

Currently the Little Miss Club has just sent off a check to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, and now the girls are planning to raise more money for Children's Hospital.

These modern 12-year-olds take my breath away. In my day, 12-year-olds were children.

"STONE'S THROW"

W. P. Campbell of Rockville, Md., calls our attention to a recent Washington Post classified ad which offered a house:

" . . . within a stone's throw of Parkside school. Reduced $1000 for immediate sale."

Quips District Liner Campbell: No wonder they're anxious to sell. They must be getting tired of replacing broken windows.

GIVE-AWAYS

"We've converted to gas, and have more than a ton of semi-soft coal left from the days when we used an Iron Fireman. The coal can be removed easily through the garage, which connects directly with the basement." (Falls Church 7671).

MISCELLANY

David William Rouleau of 510 Park plaza, Charlottesville, Va., adds another new word to our collection. One who is glad and happy may now be called "glappy" . . . Dr. Harold M. Dudley of 1507 M st. nw. would like to hear from all former students of the late Prof. Alfred North Whitehead. A public meeting in the Coolidge Auditorium of the Library of Congress (tomorrow, 8 p. m.) will pay tribute to Professor Whitehead . . . Alexandria's Recreation Department is helping that city's 20-30 Club hold its first dance (tonight, Community Center, 1605 Cameron st., 50 cents per person). The club gets its unusual name from the fact that most of the members are between 20 and 30 years old . . . Chesed Shel Emmes will hold a big whingding Tuesday night (4810 Georgia ave. nw.) to raise funds for overseas relief and other good works. Tickets (call Mrs. William Nevin at Hobart 8027) are only 35 cents and include free refreshments. If I attend they'll lose money.

COINCIDENCE DEPT.

You're not going to believe this, but I'll tell it anyhow.

A fellow named Matteson (108 N. Columbus st., Arlington, Va.) had a date with a girl friend the other night and the talk got around to the lady's hair.

After some preliminary conversation during which District Liner Matteson expressed disapproval of the girl's coiffure, he reached for a pair of scissors and said, "Do you mind if I make a few improvements?"

The young lady was somewhat taken aback by this turn of events, but gave her permission. So Matteson deftly trimmed her tresses to his liking.

He's not a barber by trade, but he's highly pleased with his handiwork and the girl grudgingly admits that it's not bad.

That's about all there is to the story, except that I forgot to mention that Matteson's first name is Samson.

SILLY HABIT DEPARTMENT

"There was one false note in that picture purporting to show you doing a broadcast," writes Tom Beesley of the Dorchester House.

"You had a pencil in your hand. Do you want us to believe that you do some writing while you're on the air?"

No, but that was the real McCoy, Tom. I can't work unless I have a pencil in my hand and my wrist watch on the table.

Yet I seldom use the pencil, and I never remember to look at the watch.

PERSONAL NOTES

Earl B. Wagner, Port Republic, Va.: That "Eternal Revenue" envelope you chanced to see could just as easily have been mine. I always address my tax payments that way; even an old joke helps to counteract the gloom attendant to shelling out.

Incidentally, some folks improve on my old wheeze by calling it the Bureau of Infernal Revenue.

CONNOISSEUR

(Overheard at a symphony concert, by Bob Morrow):

"Well, what did you think of the orchestra?"

"They're keen. The unison of the violinists' elbows was really something."

ON SEEING THE SUN

Spring has sprung,
The grass has riz.
I wonder where
The flowers is?

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK,—Noel Coward has left for Jamaica for six weeks, to write a play for Gertrude Lawrence . . . James Mason is under doctor's care at his home . . . Thelma Strabel, author of "Reap the Wild Wind," has just sold her Key West house, which is the southernmost point in the USA . . . The Washington Senators are anxious to sign Fred Vinson's son, who can hit better than the Chief Justice ever did . . . Louis Calhern's stationery, engraved at Cartier's, bears only his name and his proud boast: "Formerly With Dunn's Comedians" . . . After Artur Rubinstein's concert Sunday night he went to El Morocco's Champagne Room, where he continued his recital for an hour.

MODESTY: Beatrice Lillie, who is rehearsing in the new musical, "Inside USA," suddenly remembered a question she wanted to ask one of the men in the cast. Miss Lillie went to the men's dressing room, knocked on the door and then shouted the warning: "Shut your eyes, boys, I'm coming in."

ELEGANCE: Ilka Chase, whose newest book is "Free Admission," reports this episode on George Cukor, who lives in a Beverly Hills show place. He has rare paintings, a circular leather-lined drawing room, the finest period furniture and silverware, a pool, tennis court, etc. . . . Cukor enlisted in the Army as a private and was shipped to Astoria. This was the first time he made the cross-country trip in accommodations other than a drawing room on the Super Chief. He shared a lower berth with another GI. At the Kansas City stop-off, the distressed director rushed to the bookstand, reached for a copy of Ilka Chase's "Past Imperfect," and read the description of himself as a famed director, man of achievement and fastidious taste, etc. "Do you want the book?" asked the salesman . . . "No thank you," replied Cukor, "just the reassurance."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman Upset by Byrnes Speech

By Drew Pearson

When former Sercetary of State Jimmy Byrnes issued his "get tough" with Russia statement last week, most people thought it was carefully aimed to back up the White House. The White House, however, didn't take it that way.

BYRNES

In fact, President Truman hit the ceiling. He figured Byrnes was making a play for the Southern delegates in order to take the Democratic nomination away from him.

"The President," exploded one White House aide, "needs no sideline coaching from Jimmy Byrnes."

"Of all people," bristled another aide, "Jimmy Byrnes was about the last man we expected to hear from on getting tough with Russia. If he had been a little tougher in the years he dealt with the Russians, our problems would be a lot easier now. The least he could have done was to have cleared his statement with the State Department before sounding off."

Mr. Truman himself asked that the record be checked to see just where Byrnes stood on appeasing Russia, and remarked that Byrnes nearly sold us down the river in December, 1945.

He made no secret of the fact that he thought Byrnes was trying to assume national leadership in order to grab the Democratic nomination.

Note: After many attempts to get along with Stalin, Byrnes laid down a "get tough with Russia" policy, following his return from the ill-fated Paris conference in the fall of 1946. He also demanded that Henry Wallace be fired because Wallace was talking appeasement. Until Byrnes insisted, Truman did not plan to fire Wallace.

Who Saved Big Business?

Congressman Mike Kerwin of Ohio got off a blast at big business during the closed meeting of the Democratic Party executive committee the other day.

After reminding the Democrats how big business repeatedly bit the hand that protected it from revolution during the early days of the New Deal, Kerwin opined:

"Roosevelt saved those guys from drowning. How they are screaming because their top hats floated out on the tide."

Making Democracy Live

One of the great things about Americans is the way ,so many people go out and work at the job of making democracy live. When they see democracy slipping abroad or at home, they chip in without waiting for leadership up above and do their bit. Here are a few scattered examples:

Miss Edwina Cahill and Miss Mabel Ellis of the Pacific Heights School, San Francisco, wrote Glasgow, Scotland, for the names of school children with whom their pupils could exchange friendship letters. They got back 2500 names, and the kids have been building up friendship-by-mail ever since . . . Mayor Michael DiSalle of Toledo got the city council to start a campaign of writing friendship letters to Europeans on the edge of the iron curtain or behind it. "Marshall may make speeches," says Mayor DiSalle, "but no speech has the same weight as a letter from a relative in the USA." . . . Mrs. Noble Ewell, Orange, Tex., school teacher, joined the "student letter exchange" and got a list of school children in England, France, Yugoslavia, Sweden, Norway. The Texas kids are now writing these kids about democracy and friendship . . . The Swarthmore (Pa.) High School has adopted the town of Stade, Germany . . . GI's from the Sand Point Naval Air Station, Seattle, devoted their day off to helping build a house for a widow and five children who were almost homeless . . . This is only a very small cross section of what some folks are doing to make democracy live.

Secret Tax Debate

Senate Democrats were far from united when they caucused behind closed doors the other day to determine what stand to take on the GOP-sponsored, $4,700,000,000 tax-reduction bill. Two Democrats—Walter George of Georgia, ranking minority member of the Finance (tax) Committee, and hefty Edwin C. Johnson of Colorado—flatly announced they would support the Republican measure.

"Maybe this isn't the best bill we can get," said Johnson. "It's not all I want, but it's something we can pass, and the great majority of the people, I am convinced, want tax reduction.

George echoed the same sentiments, saying that the overwhelming majority of citizens in his State wanted tax relief. "They and all others are entitled to have it," he argued.

But Senators Tom Connally of Texas and Joseph O'Mahoney of Wyoming were vigorously opposed. "This is no time to cut taxes," declared Connally, pointing to the tense world situation.

"This bill provides for far too big a reduction," he contended. "It's all right to clear up some inequities in the tax structure, but let's not commit ourselves to such a big drop in revenues until we are sure our economy can stand it. The times are too critical and uncertain."

Democratic Leader Alben Barkley of Kentucky originally had called the caucus to sound out his colleagues on whether they would support a Democratic compromise bill providing for a four-billion-dollar cut in taxes. In the end the caucus decided to wait.
